Automobile Chamber of Commerce Applies for Charter To Produce,

COMMITTEE NAMED FOR SUPERVISION

All Auto Manufacturers
Will Be Permitted To Hold Stock in Huge Corporation.

New York, January 12.—(AP)—The national automobile chamber of commerce today authorized the appropriation of $10,000,000 to assure the public and the motor vehicle manufacturers of adequate supplies of rubber at reasonable prices. It was decided to apply for a charter enabling the organization to produce, purchase and deal in rubber.

A committee was named to take the necessary steps to organize and apply for a charter. The charter will be broad in its scope, including the authority to produce, purchase and deal in raw rubber and rubber products, as well as to manufacture automobile tires.

Offset British Monopoly.

The Rubber Association of America yesterday began the consideration of a project to promote the production of rubber for American consumption to offset the British monopoly.

The plan provides that all automobile manufacturers will be permitted to take stock in the corporation on the basis of their production in 1925. Several of the largest producing companies immediately announced they would take their allotment of stock.

The action today, Alfred Reeves, general manager of the chamber of commerce, said, was the result of the abnormal price of rubber which ultimately is paid for by the American consumer, as 70 per cent of the world's production is used in this country. Safeguarding the future supply of rubber to meet the normal increasing demand for motor transportation and prevention of excessive prices will result, Mr. Reeves said.

Plans Are Discussed.

Following the directors' meeting, representatives of the leading automobile manufacturers went into active session to reduce the plan to a definite form for immediate action.

Charles Clifton, president of the chamber of commerce, announced the following committee to take immediate action on the plan: John J. Raskob, vice president of the General Motors corporation; C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors company; A. J. Brosseau, president of Mack Trucks, Inc.; Roy D. Chapin, chairman of the Packard Motor Car company; Arthur T. Waterfall, vice president of Dodge Brothers, Inc.; and A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker corporation.

Hopeless Deadlock In Education Board Leadership Fight

Eighty-eight Ballots Fail
To Show Required
Majority for Any of Five Nominees for Post.

RESUME VOTING
ONE WEEK HENCE

Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson,
Acting Chairman,
Presides Throughout
Unusual Session of 1926
Board.

Hopelessly deadlocked in their efforts to elect a president, members of the 1926 city board of education adjourned late Tuesday for one week, after 88 ballots had been taken without any of the five nominees mustering the required majority.

The board is to meet again next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock to resume balloting.

The last ballot was the same as the 35 preceding ballots, the vote being as follows:

Dr. R. M. Eubanks, 5; W. W. Gaines, 4; D. M. Therrell, 2. The full membership of 12 was in attendance but Dr. Eubanks' request early in the balloting that he be excused from voting was granted.

Dr. Eubanks on the second ballot received six votes, the most received by any nominee. Commissioner Hoffman, of the eighth ward, who voted for Dr. Eubanks on that ballot, changed to Mr. Gaines and later to Mr. Therrell as the balloting progressed. Mr. Gaines and Mr. Therrell on a number of ballots received five votes.

Without Precedent.

The situation is without a precedent in Atlanta's municipal history, according to old-time politicians.

With Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, acting president of the board in the chair, the 1926 board was called to order and the first order of business announced was the election of a president and other officers.

W. C. State, representative from the second ward nominated Dr. Eubanks. Mr. Therrell was nominated by Commissioner Gaines. Mr. Gaines, in turn was nominated by Mr. Therrell. Commissioner Oscar Mills, of the ninth, put the name of Mrs. S. V. Peterson in nomination and Mrs. Peterson reciprocated by submitting the name of Mr. Mills. Nominations were closed and balloting got under way.

On the final ballot board members voted as follows: For Dr. Eubanks, Commissioners Dr. Fred Morris, State, and Mr. C. W. Nash.

NICHOLS IS FOUND GUILTY OF SLAYING MANN M'INTYRE

Sentenced to 10 to 15
Years on Manslaughter
Charge After Fatal
Shooting on Ivy Street.

Leon Nichols, charged with the slaying last July 20 of Mann McIntyre, late Tuesday night was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter by a jury in Judge G. H. Howard's division of Fulton superior court. He was sentenced to serve from 10 to 15 years.

The case, which started at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, reached the jury at 9:21 o'clock at night and a verdict was reached two hours later.

Sentence was passed upon the 23-year-old youth by Judge Howard and he was returned to his cell in Fulton tower to await transportation to the chain-gang. The youth received the verdict of the jury calmly and made no comment.

Nichols, according to evidence at the trial, shot McIntyre on July 20 on Ivy street. The fatal shots were fired from an automobile in which Nichols is said to have been riding with his brother, Clarence. Bill Thompson and George Poole, the three men were indicted jointly with Nichols on December 1, but their cases were not called for trial pending the outcome of Nichols' trial.

Murder Charged.

The state contends that McIntyre was shot by Nichols as the outgrowth of an altercation between the two men a day or two before the shooting.

The defense, represented by Attorney H. A. Allen, set up a self-defense plea and sought to prove that McIntyre jumped toward the car in which Nichols was seated with his companions, assuming a menacing attitude. Nichols then fired upon him, it was claimed, to protect himself from McIntyre.

Assistant Solicitor John H. Hudson represented the state and brought out evidence that Nichols shot McIntyre while the latter was unarmed and attempting to avoid meeting Nichols.

Both Attorney Allen and Assistant Solicitor Hudson made lengthy arguments to the jury, the former speaking one hour, while the latter spoke for 50 minutes. Judge Howard's charge consumed 22 minutes and he went into detail to explain to the jury justifiable homicide, voluntary manslaughter and murder.

Life at Nichols' Side.

Throughout the trial, Nichols' wife and baby remained seated close to him, his young mate following intently by the legal battle which centered about her husband.

Mrs. Nichols reclined more comfortably in her chair as her husband went to the stand late in the trial and gave his version of the fatal shooting.

"I did not know that McIntyre was coming toward me until I heard two or three yell, 'look out,'" Nichols said. "I looked and saw McIntyre approaching with his knife and I knew that he would kill me. I reached in the side pocket of the car and got the gun. I knew that it was a case of life or death. I knew that he would kill me if he got on me. He made several threats. I was unnerved. Anybody would have done what I did. There was nothing to do but to keep him off so I shot in self-defense. It was just a case of life or death."

COAL OPERATORS MAY BREAK RANKS ON ARBITRATION

PARLEY ON STRIKE
SUDDENLY CLOSED

Caustic and Uncomplimentary Statements
Come From Both Sides,
Each Blaming the Other.

New York, January 12.—While federal and state observers tried to foresee the next move toward settlement of the anthracite coal strike following the collapse of the conference here between operators and miners, word came Tuesday night from an apparently reliable source that the operators had broken ranks in their stand for arbitration, the rock on which the latest attempt to bring peace foundered.

The information now is that only three of the coal companies still insist upon arbitration. They are said to be the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, of which S. D. Warriner is the head, the Madera Hill company and the Philadelphia Coal and Iron company, of which J. W. Richards is president. Of these, the Philadelphia and Reading, which with Warriner's company, is the most powerful, is reported to be wavering in opposition to arbitration.

Ingalls Denies Report.

W. W. Ingalls denied the report of the break for the operators who attended the conference, saying that all of the coal companies were united in the stand for arbitration.

The strike conference broke up Tuesday morning on motion of the operators, which the miners refused to second.

Adjournment without date followed a heated discussion in which J. B. Warriner for the operators said: "I'd like to have one of these international officers (of the miners) second the motion to adjourn. They started the strike and last week pretended they would second an adjournment."

Following the meeting, the operators charged that Lewis said that he did not care if the price of coal was

FIGHT OVER FARM RELIEF INDICATED AS COUNCIL OPENS

ASKS COOPERATIVE

fer With Jardine.

Washington, January 12.—The National Council of Farmers Cooperative Marketing associations, composed of 200 delegates from all sections of the country, was split wide open today on the question of controlling crop surpluses so as to boost farm product prices on the domestic market.

In his opening address, Robert W. Bingham, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who is chairman of the council, condemned the present movement for surplus control legislation, arguing that the inadequate returns of agricultural producers is not due to the low price of the export surplus on the world market, but to the lack of organized selling by the farmers. He urged a thorough trial of cooperative marketing before any other remedy for the ills of the farmer is resorted to.

Delegates Are Split.

Mr. Bingham's pronouncement was approved, apparently, by only a minority of the council, and tonight the advocates of surplus control are busy preparing resolutions and other forms of reply to the chairman's argument. Fearing that if the strict purpose of discussing cooperative marketing be departed from, and the surplus control problem discussed the conference would be here "till the cows come home," former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, who takes issue with Judge Bingham, counseled the delegates to attempt no resolution on the surplus question.

In the meantime the editors of a score of agricultural papers met with

GERALD NYE GIVEN
SEAT AS PARTIES
SPLIT IN SENATE

Result Means Borah
Gains Another Vote in Fight to Keep U. S. Out of World Court.

Washington, January 12.—(AP)—Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, was given his seat in the United States senate this afternoon by a vote of 41 to 39. Thereby the administration forces in the senate received their most emphatic rebuff since the senate's refusal last spring to confirm President Coolidge's nomination of Charles Beecher Warren, of Michigan, to be attorney general of the United States.

And Senator Borah picked up another vote in the fight to prevent the entrance of the United States into the world court, a fact which is taken to explain his fifth hour change of front in the contest against seating Senator Nye, against whose confirmation he, a few days ago, said he would vote.

Party Lines Broken.

Party lines were broken in this afternoon's vote to receive the young Dakotan into the senate as temporary successor to the late Senator Ladd, 14 republicans, 26 democrats and one farmer-laborite voting to confirm Governor Sorlie's appointment, while 14 republicans and 8 democrats voted not to confirm.

Three causes are believed to lie behind the various belated changes in senatorial opinion which won Senator Nye his seat by a majority of two.

In the first place, the anti-world courtiers rallied to him as being one who is opposed to the entry of the United States into the world court.

In the second place, many senators, notably Underwood, of Alabama, felt that it would be unfair to deprive North Dakota of several months to come of representation in the United States equal to that of the other 47 states of the union, especially as objections to confirming the temporary appointment would in their belief have to rest largely on legal technicalities, which while preserving the letter of the law, would defy the intent of the people.

And thirdly, other senators had no desire to put further rancor into the hearts of western farmers by rejecting an appointee who is avowedly their champion.

Many of these sympathetic senators felt—and one of them, Heflin, of Alabama, said in today's debate—that North Dakota had troubles enough without being forced to spend $200,000 for a special and immediate election to select a successor to the late Senator Ladd.

Governor Walker Gets Aid of Organization After Strong Appeal at Meeting of Trustees.

DOCTORS INDORSE
WALKER PROGRAM

Eleventh District Medical Society Also In-dorses Proposals Concerning Roads, Schools.

Macon, Ga., January 12.—(AP)—Following a stirring appeal by Governor Clifford Walker, in behalf of a state-wide highway program and "equalized" educational facilities for all children, trustees of the 62 Kiwanis clubs of the state in session at the Hotel Dempsey today, adopted the proposal of the chief executive as part of the organization's work for the coming year. Social service and bettering of agricultural conditions also were included in the year's program.

Governor Walker, in delivering the principal address of the day, urged all the delegates to return home and stir up public sentiment for Georgia's road building program which is one of the vital questions before the special session of the legislature next month.

To Arouse Interest.

"Go back to your homes," the governor said, "and organize meetings of representative citizens of your city and counties and arouse interest in the program. I myself am willing to speak twice daily for them between now and the time the legislature convenes."

"Georgia is at the parting of the ways. Within the past four months there has been a great change in sentiment towards a great highway system. In the next 30 days you can make a great contribution to your state by arousing public interest. You can't get anything in the legislature unless you've got public sentiment behind it."

"Kiwanis in Georgia today is a great constructive force."

Plea for Schools.

Making a plea in behalf of the consolidation and centralization of Georgia's schools, Governor Walker said he was ready to erect a great monument to the accomplishments of Kiwanis but would build a greater monument when every child in the state has within his reach a nine-month high school.

"My greatest hope," the governor said, "is for the country."

20 TO 40 PER CENT RAISE IS APPROVED IN NEW SCHEDULES

All Points on Line Affected by Action of Commission—Commuters Protest Fare Hike.

EXPRESS, FREIGHT RATES GO HIGHER

General Increase in Fares
Includes Passenger and Freight and Express
Shipments to All Points.

Increases in passenger fares on the Stone Mountain interurban line were granted Tuesday to the Georgia Railway & Power company in an order handed down by the Georgia public service commission.

Increases affect all points on the line, and range from 25 per cent to 40 per cent above the present rates for single trip fares, averaging about 10 per cent on monthly commutation tickets.

Increases are to be effective on and after February 1 and the company is directed to post notice of changes in each car operated on the line for not less than five days before the change goes into effect.

New rates for freight and express on the Stone Mountain line were ordered at the same time as the new passenger rates were approved. New express rates are 15 cents per hundredweight on all items of food or drink, and 27 cents per hundredweight on all other items. A minimum charge of 35 cents for a single shipment is established.

Clarifies Express Rate.

It is impossible to compare the new express rates with the old, inasmuch as hitherto there has been a complicated schedule of express rates similar to those of railroad companies. Express shipments in the past have been divided into numerous classifications, with varying rates applying to each classification.

The new rates to go into effect on February 1, both express and passenger, are said to be the same as those now charged on the Marietta interurban line, which is approximately the same length as the Stone Mountain line.

The new passenger rates are exacting as requested by the company in a petition filed some months ago and on which a public hearing was held December 3. Express rates granted are less than those asked, the petition asking for a rate of 25 cents per hundredweight on items of food and drink, and 40 cents per hundredweight on all other items. However, the minimum express charge of 35 cents is the same as requested by the company.

Under the new schedule of passenger rates the fare from Atlanta to Stone Mountain will be 40 cents; to Mount Zion, 32 cents; to Clarkston, 28 cents; to Scottdale, 16 cents; to Decatur, 14 cents.

Strict Police Rules Laid Out By Hartsfield

New Police Committee Will Back Jett 'To Limit.'

Police officers in uniform who are found drinking intoxicating liquors will be immediately dismissed and "stay fired," the police committee will back Acting Chief E. L. Jett to the "very letter" to put his department on a high-class and efficient basis, and police officers, disabled either by age or physical ailments from active duty, will be pensioned.

These were high lights of a statement Tuesday from Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, new police committee chairman, marking his first public declaration of policies to govern the police department throughout this year.

Members of the police committee already have given tentative approval of new policies and they will be called upon formally to approve the policies tonight at the first meeting of the new board.

"The 1926 police committee will back up Chief Jett to the limit in enforcement of laws, fearlessly and impartially," said Chairman Hartsfield. "We want a high-class and clean department and we are going to have it."

Miss Sellers Now Youngest 'Trust Buster'

Does Not Smoke Nor Bob
Hair, But Is Liberal
In Views.

New York, January 12.—(AP)—Reversing the slogan which made her father and mother "go west and become pioneers," Miss Crenna Sellers has come east from Oklahoma to do some pioneering as the youngest woman "trust buster" in the country.

She is the second woman—and the youngest—to join the anti-trust division of United States Attorney General Ladd. She has found, she said today, that the pioneer's craving for new fields can be satisfied by exploring a sphere hitherto almost devoid of women, as well as her parents' satisfied it going to Oklahoma when that country was still Indian territory.

Though convinced a woman can carve a career out of even so complex a branch of the legal profession as the anti-trust division, Miss Sellers is not "the modern woman" in some other ways. She does not have bobbed hair and doesn't intend to. She does not smoke. She does not like saxophones, jazz or subways. Her preference is cooking, Shakespearean drama and literature.

"But," she said, "if other girls want to wear their hair short and smoke cigarettes, I think they should be allowed to. Morality has nothing to do with bobbed hair or women's smoking, you know."

Miss Sellers grew up on a ranch, has taught school, and has been a bank cashier.

Disarmament Differences Between France, England May Postpone Conference

League Officials Frankly
Admit They Would Not Be Surprised Should Such Happen.

Geneva, January 12.—Franco-British differences regarding disarmament may necessitate the postponement of the preliminary disarmament conference scheduled to meet in Geneva February 15.

The league has not received any request for postponement, but it is understood that private diplomatic conversations are in progress between France, Great Britain and other nations represented on the league council on the advisability of postponing the preliminary meeting until April.

League officials frankly state that postponement would not be surprising. It is granted that there are fundamental differences of opinion between Britain and France, and that an open clash during the preliminary conference would menace disarmament.

Added to the fundamental disagreement regarding the French desire for a program to include "invisible" as well as visible armaments, there is added the agitated question of separate consideration of naval and military disarmament.

France, Italy, Belgium and Japan desire military and naval disarmament to be considered simultaneously. Great Britain and the United States lead those who desire separate conferences.

RUSSIA TO HAVE PART IN POLICY.

Berlin, January 12.—Soviet Russia will participate in the preliminary disarmament conference of the League of Nations at Geneva, it is learned authoritatively, on the condition that Russo-Swiss relations are adjusted meanwhile. Soviet participation would mark the first Russian cooperation with the league.

France and Great Britain are pressing Switzerland to come to terms with Moscow.

Russia hitherto has scorned the league, and it works as the fruit of an anti-soviet combination of western European powers. Russian participation in the preliminary disarmament conference would be potentially as important as Germany's entrance into the league itself later in the year, as it is admitted that disarmament in Europe is impossible so long as Moscow holds aloof.

Russo-Swiss relations became involved three years ago when a German envoy to Rome, who temporarily was in Switzerland. The killer was acquitted by Swiss courts on a plea that the Bolsheviks had mistreated his family during the revolution.

Russia's decision to come to Geneva, even on conditions, represents a defeat for the extreme communists of Moscow who, under the leadership of Gregory Zinoviev, suffered a reverse in the recent communist elections. The moderates appear to be in power in Moscow now, although the theory of communism is not affected thereby.

CHAPMAN AIDES ARE FINED HERE

Money used in effecting the escape of Gerald Chapman, noted mail bandit, from an Athens hospital while he was being held pending his recovery from bullet wounds after his escape from the federal penitentiary here, was furnished by "men higher up," in the opinion of Judge Samuel H. Sibley, who Monday fined Abe Silverstein and Dominick Didato, of New York, $1,000 each, with an alternative of serving six months in the Fulton county chain gang for their share in the escape.

"I don't believe you had the money and I don't believe you have sense enough to work out the plan under which the bandit escaped from Athens," Judge Sibley told Silverstein in imposing the sentence.

Chapman and several other prisoners escaped from the Athens jail more than two years ago. Chapman a few days previously had escaped from the federal penitentiary here, where he was serving a 25-year sentence on a charge of mail robbery in New York, which netted the bandits more than $1,000,000. Chapman was shot near Athens, and was in the hospital under guard when he escaped.

Received Outside Aid.

Investigation by federal officers led to disclosures that Chapman and some of his companions had received outside aid in making their escape. The investigation led to New York, where Silverstein and Didato were taken into custody on charges of aiding a federal prisoner to escape.

Judge Sibley imposed the maximum sentence on the men when they were arraigned before him at their own request Tuesday morning. They entered pleas of guilty after their attorney, F. J. Hagan, of New York, had held a conference with J. W. Chastain, assistant United States district attorney. Silverstein and Didato were identified by Miss Corleau Ramsey, nurse at St. Mary's hospital at Athens, as the men who aided Chapman to escape.

Held in Tower.

Didato was held in custody in Fulton Tower Tuesday while Silverstein and Attorney Hagan awaited replies to telegrams sent to New York for funds with which to pay the fines. Silverstein and Didato waged a long fight against extradition to Georgia on the charge of complicity in Chapman's escape. They carried their case to the United States supreme court, where they lost.

Chapman escaped from the Athens hospital April 4, 1923, and was recaptured at Munich, Ind., on January 17, 1925. He was brought back to Atlanta to complete his sentence but was transferred to New Britain, Conn., where he was tried for the murder of a New Britain policeman. He is now under death sentence in the state prison at Weathersfield, Conn., but is awaiting the outcome of an appeal taken to the United States supreme court.

Coolidge Favors 'Patience Policy' In Mexican Tilt

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, January 12.—President Coolidge, while confident that a policy of patience will yield satisfactory results in our present diplomatic brush with Mexico over the retroactive features of the new alien and petroleum laws, is still determined that American property rights must be protected.

At the white house, where the attitude of the government was set forth in some detail today, it was stated that President Coolidge is still hopeful that the Mexican government will live up to the agreements made in 1923 which provide protection for American property rights.

President Coolidge, it was said, has no quarrel with Mexico over the right of that nation to make internal laws.

It was explained that this government has interests which must be protected and that under the new laws property rights guaranteed by Mexico are endangered. This government is also desirous that Mexico keep her international promises.

President Coolidge believes that much patience must be exercised in this situation. He sees that the Mexican government has many difficulties and feels that there should be a public expectation that this government must be helpful and must not press them too hard.

In the opinion of the president, the Mexican people do not have the advantages we have and we ought to be helpful in any way we can. There seems to be an official feeling that Mexico wants to live up to her agreements and will do so.

THE BOND ISSUE.

Finance committee of council, by unanimous vote, has agreed upon a city bond issue of $6,000,000.

This is a little more than the amount recommended by the mayor and considerably less than would have been justified by public approval. It is in the nature of a compromise, which is good as far as it goes, for the amount as agreed upon will enable the city to proceed immediately with outstanding improvements of first importance.

The measure will be submitted to council at its next meeting and will no doubt receive the approval of that body.

The next step will be to submit the bond issue to the public for approval, and there can be no doubt of its overwhelming ratification by ballot.

There is but one possible danger and that is in the lethargy of the voters. This difficulty can be easily overcome by a well-organized campaign under the direction of a competent leader who is willing to devote a few weeks' time to this great civic enterprise.

It is time to be looking out for such a man, for on the selection of the right man will very largely depend the outcome of the campaign.

There never has been a time when public opinion was more united in support of any measure than for a bond issue at this time and, properly presented to the people, it should be ratified by a practically unanimous vote.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

We present elsewhere on this page a communication from Ernest L. Rhodes, prominent Atlanta importer and manufacturer, who has just returned from a motor trip to Florida, where he says the first question asked of everybody by everybody else is, "How did you come and how much trouble did you have coming through Georgia?"

He says that the average motorist visitor to Florida writes immediately back home to friends to advise Georgia, if possible.

Mr. Rhodes makes a plea for the immediate connection of the many links of good road in Georgia, and in doing so expresses the universal sentiment of the state.

In dealing with this question the extra session of the general assembly will have before it the most important matter that has been considered by a legislature in Georgia for many a year.

Reduced to its last analysis, it is simply a question as to whether Georgia is going forward or backward.

It is to be hoped that members of the general assembly, regardless of their opinion as to the advisability of an extra session will, now that the call is definitely announced meet this issue in the spirit of the broadest patriotism.

There will, of course, be a display of petty and personal politics, but let us hope that it will be reduced to a minimum.

It would be a wonderful day for Georgia if every member of the general assembly, coming here for the extra session, would consecrate his efforts to the supreme task of lifting Georgia out of the mud, both in the matter of highways and education.

There will, of course, be some mossbacks to protest, and who would urge that it is just as well to wait ten or twenty years for a thing that we can just as easily get now.

The same argument was made in other states, but the mossbacks there were outnumbered and overwhelmed.

Will this be true of Georgia?

A TACTICAL MISTAKE.

The democrats of the senate have made a blunder in the effort to make the income tax bill a partisan measure. Nothing that congress has done in a long time has been as generally approved as the action of the ways and means committee of the house, and later of the house itself, in making this bill a non-partisan measure.

Both democrats and republicans on the house committee cooperated to the end of presenting a law which would meet the requirements of the situation without regard to party consideration. Each side gave and took and the result was the passage of the measure by the house with very little debate and with universal popular approval in which both democrats and republicans shared.

It would have been much better had the democrats of the senate pursued the same policy. Had this been done the income tax law would have been speedily enacted, allowing the taxpayers plenty of time to prepare their reports for filing before the date of the first payment—March 15.

Some of the senate democratic leaders thought differently, however, and thus made a party issue of a revised bill, which was promptly turned down by the senate committee to which it was referred, and which they will no doubt carry to the senate as a minority report.

This measure will in all probability fail of passage, but even if by alliance with some of the so-called western progressives it should pass the senate it could not possibly pass the house.

But the discussion over it—all for political effect—will probably keep the measure in suspense until March. Then there will be a rush by the taxpayers for the completion of their returns in time for the first payment.

It is a tactical mistake on the part of those democrats of the senate who are responsible for it.

CRUX OF THE ISSUE.

The question is no longer can we afford good roads, but can we afford to be without them?

The real progress of any state is measured by the transportation facilities it affords.

Good roads are now as essential to Georgia as the American transcontinental railways were to the development of the west.

The motor car is no longer an experiment, but a proven unit of transportation and we must provide adequate highways for the operation of the motor car if we are to reap the best benefits of wonderful opportunity afforded by the modern motor vehicle.

This is an age of efficiency; we can no longer be held down by ox-team transportation nor can we afford to waste time and money plowing through miles of mud or wearing our vehicles out by operating them in the clouds of dust that are only 48 hours behind the mud.

Few people are aware of the progress we have already made in the development of permanent roads. For example, Atlanta-Macon, 98 miles and more than half of it concrete; Atlanta-Chattanooga, 135 miles and 40 of it paved; Atlanta-Athens, 70 miles and about 25 of it already paved; Atlanta-Columbus, 40 per cent paved, and so on throughout the state, making an average of about 25 per cent paved road on the main highways.

We have the job almost half done but the missing links make the work we have already done almost worthless in bad weather.

That is exactly the point—and it also presents the imperative need of the highway situation in Georgia. The mud links condemn the paved links. We must eliminate this cause from condemnation so that our highway investment may pay us profitable dividends.

A NOTABLE ANNIVERSARY.

The Knoxville Sentinel has just celebrated its 39th birthday, rounding out that many years of useful service, and having long since established itself as one of the leading newspapers of Tennessee.

This anniversary celebration is of additional interest to Georgia in that the Sentinel was established by John T. Hearn, an honored citizen of this state, who now in his 82d year, resides at Bowdon, Ga., where he has lived for many years.

Mr. Hearn went to Knoxville from Shelbyville, Ky., where he was the editor and owner of the Shelbyville Sentinel, a weekly publication. He saw the opportunity for an evening newspaper at Knoxville, and little did he know, in establishing the Sentinel, that it would become one of the great newspaper properties of the south.

The 39th anniversary edition of the Sentinel contains a reminiscent sketch written by its founder in which he presents interesting anecdotes and personal recollections of some of the great Tennesseans of the time when the Sentinel was in its infancy.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON

The Sunbeam's Thoroughfare.

I. The light now coming through my window pane is gray, and a gloom fills all the atmosphere. My search for rays of sunshine is in vain; for rain is dripping everywhere. But raindrops will not beat my window pane. I know, and from somewhere the wind is calling to the dismal rain. "Away! This is the sunbeam's thoroughfare!"

II. My thoughts, reflected deep within my heart, are gloomy—gray as the atmosphere. I grope for light—some little ray or gleam. And find, instead, dark clouds of deep despair. But darkness will not hold me in her power. Forever I this I know; and from somewhere Fair hope is calling to this dismal hour. "Away! for I am Regent of the Air!"

—ETHEL DE LIESSELINE.
Atlanta, Ga.

So far the New Year has not witnessed a revival of the mother-in-law joke, but the Knoxville Express came along and met it in a review of a book by a local celebrity, known as "Jim, the Teeman." "Jim," the Express explains, "is celebrated as the author of a book on the subject of the station with a hearse, and his recital of the incident is the paragraph the married men of the community will chuckle over."

With Brother Williams. Brother Williams preached a New Year sermon the other day, "lined" with seven hymns, and took up a collection while each was being sung. Here is one of the hymns:

"Heaven ain't built,
With hammers an' nails,
Dev ain't no police,
An' dey ain't no jails."

"Golden sheets
Whar it's always sunny;
No bill collectors
For ter git yo' money."

"Black is white,
An' white is black,
As de crow on de fence,
Or de chimney-back."

"An' de word come down
De de fallin' star:
De de ain't no chens
Parkin' dar."

That last stanza is where he made the mistake, with the wherewith "come down."

A Sermon From the Sanctum. The Thomasville Times-Enterprise man hands this to one of his brother pen-pushers:

"The editor who says that preachers, who don't harangue for three hours or more are not earning their money, would probably feel aggrieved if folks didn't read his editorials, if they were three pages in length."

And here's the Adams Enterprise saying there are so many poor men in heaven, there's no room for the rich.

Here's another shot from Editor Jerger:

"Tipping may be a crime in Georgia, but there are about as many violators as there are to the prohibition law."

The Universal Question

Being Asked in Florida

Editor Constitution: I want to con-tribute to you upon the great fight that you are making for good roads in this state and the linking up of those sections that are good—as to make a continuous highway in some direction through the state, for Georgia is very, very far behind her sister states in the matter of good roads, rules and regulations.

We motored to Florida a short time ago and that road was the worst I have ever seen. The roads were almost impassable. Some cars we passed had been stuck all night.

We also motored over the greater part of Florida and in the hotels, wherever there were any gathering of people that had motored the first question that was asked was: "How did you come and how much trouble did you have coming through Georgia?" And they were writing their friends back home to avoid Georgia roads as well as the regulations.

As you know, in Florida upon concrete roads the speed limit is 45 miles per hour, and on a 25 per cent paved road the limit is 25 miles per hour. This, you will well know, in a big car is nothing. Likewise in some of the good road sections in Georgia we were warned not to go over 30 miles an hour or we would get pinched and that the road would be the worst I have ever seen.

We were also warned that the present agitation will help improve conditions in Georgia and give the tourists a better opinion of the state of Georgia than they have now.

Says Those Who Don't

Like It Should Stay Away

Editor Constitution: Stronger men than I am are treating this subject to my satisfaction, but I want to give my simple expression.

The same old subject is up again for a wide-open Sabbath and pleading for support by using "laboring people" and "poor" as their victims. Have these classes been making such demands? All people are not laboring people. If we are going to abolish God, plan and do away with the Sabbath, why not abolish the commandments about killing and stealing?

Next laboring people have taken up the question: "Is Sunday a night for busy people to get acquainted with their children?"

This plan is not from big hearts to help humanity but to get humanity's hard earned money.

Ex-Vice President Marshall in a speech here in Atlanta said: "This very action that took up arms against the nation is the only hope to save the nation, not being tainted with foreign elements and balshazker bias, the standard of morals is high in the south."

If we have 20,000 visitors in Atlanta over Sunday, the ones who count are clustered in the churches, public libraries, art galleries, museums, and free public concerts of a sacred and classic program. Such frank and open ray meat, this is a Christian nation; not a pagan or a Mohammedan one. The supreme court of the United States has so decided.

The answer is then resolves itself into "what should a Christian nation do to preserve and protect the Christian 'rest day'—the Sabbath that the entire Christian world observes as a day of rest and devotion?"

Does that mean that Sunday must be returned to the fanatical New England Puritan abolitionists, who gave origin to the fanatical pamphlet of "The Blue Laws of Connecticut?" Not at all!

There cannot be any rational objection to the opening of public parks, zoological gardens, public libraries, art galleries, museums, and free public concerts of a sacred and classic program. LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

BY PIERRE VAN PAASEN

New York, January 12.—Though they do not advertise their wares as conspicuously as their Parisian counterparts, New York has at least a dozen or so matrimonial bureaus that do a thriving trade. Their ads are to be found among the personal columns in the newspapers often deftly concealed under some high-sounding name or else with the announcement that Madame So and So gives advice on perplexing questions of the heart and love affairs.

The clientele of these institutions is chiefly made up of middle-aged bachelors, widowers and other customers who are beginning to weary of the blessed state of singleness and who haven't got the gumption or the inclination to hunt their own quarry.

To get acquainted with the method of operation of one of these bureaus or marriage markets one must proceed with circumspection and care. The ladies and gentlemen who conduct the business are leery of fellows of the five-foot, eleven variety. I discovered. They look too much like detectives or private investigators. Still one can get an introduction through some corner barkeep, a bootlegger friend of the proprietor and of oneself—or from a friendly cop, for that matter.

The first thing that must be settled is this: "Do you want to marry for love or money?" No doubt a hard question to solve, but I take it that most fellows who follow this method of getting a wife have little sentiment and that money is invariably the most important consideration.

Next the prospective bride's age limit must be decided. "Will you go as high as 40?" We have some refined ladies who are not exactly youthful, but who still have their good looks.

Do you want to take a chance? Fortunately the answer to the question remained in abeyance, for the proprietress trotted out a layer of photographs for our inspection that commanded some attention.

Here then were the love-lorn damsels of America. A farmer's widow from Arizona, worth $50,000 with the face of Samson, the famous French operator of the guillotine. A bathing beauty from the Tennessee mountains who grinned from ear to ear. An ever so shy and demure little creature who had been widowed by her own hand but let off by the Chicago courts. Everyone of them card-indexed, categorized, and classified with the utmost efficiency.

"Carrie Johnstone, 35, divorcee; owns laundry. Frisco, savings bank deposits, $17,000; blonde 5 foot-3; complexion clear, eyes blue; amiable disposition, three children; religion, Disciples, none under 40." Well, that lets me out.

The photos are the most intriguing part of the business. What wistful eyes, what luscious curves, what tantalizing mouths. In Sally Jones, of Tannersville, Omaha, you recognize Venus de Milo and in Myrick Merrick, of Canton, Ohio, you see again the features of the folies leading lady. Monsieur Ziegfeld need advertise no longer for beauties. He can have his pick right here.

To stimulate my interest the proprietress tells me that she has arranged 187 marriages during the past year and "every one happy." At a rate of $50 per, $25 from groom and so much again from bride-elect, it comes to something close to $10,000, which is not bad pickings, all things considered.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Americianizing Holland.

The old Holland of rustic gardens, windmills, wide - pantalooned fisher folk, Gouda clay pipes and cheese markets, is being replaced by an atmosphere of ultra modern American jazz and modern life. In Amsterdam, where the mighty lord mayors of another age lived in their splendor and from whose fleets their fleets took the conquest of the new world and the Indies, are being turned into "dancings," cinemas and night clubs. De Jaan, in Rotterdam, has become a miniature Broadway, while The Hague, formerly proud of its ability to speak immaculate French and its name of "Petit Paris," imitates London in its use of clubs for lounge hours and gaiety. All young Rotterdam turns out at nights to watch the incoming "perfume train" and "Broadway Special" from The Hague with its load of fange art, color, and entertainers and coquettes. American periodicals are in great vogue. Aesthetics complain that ancient and picturesque facades are being defaced by American film posters, Dutch Victorians object to the new fashion of chewing gum, but the barbers, the couturiers and costumiers are smiling. The hairdressers have begun. Ever maid and matron must have a "bob-head," that is the Dutch quasi-Americanized phrase the Hollanders use for bobbed hair. Stockings are rolled, lips are dyed, eyes are shaded. One must be up-to-date American, says one old. Still need quite up to date, for they don't need to take a tip like that.

Woodcarvings.

Art collectors from all over the world are flocking to Amsterdam, where the Dutch have been pressing the art of carving wood from all over the world. The exact work of the Dutch is being pressed, the art of carving wood from all over the world.

Sam Small Discusses The "Open Sunday" Issue

BY SAM W. SMALL.

I am glad the Hoffman proposal to "liberalize our Sunday" has "gone glimmering."

"Sabbath" means rest, not business, football, polo, movies and auto races. God who made us (unless the Scoopsonian evolutionists are right) made man in His own image and likeness. He made him a creature of machine and not of machine.

We were also warned that the present agitation will help improve conditions in Georgia and give the tourists a better opinion of the state of Georgia than they have now.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

A railroad train was delayed by a wreck on the track ahead and the engine was detached from the waiting train, so that the coaches received no heat all night. The temperature in the coaches fell to 18 degrees below zero.

It is admitted that this was pretty cold. On account of this exposure during the night, so it was alleged in a suit subsequently brought against the railroad company, a woman passenger was indisposed for two or three weeks. Her elder daughter was confined to bed and barely escaped pneumonia, and two other children had severe colds but soon recovered.

According to the testimony none of the family suffered any permanent injury on account of the exposure, and only the elder daughter (who "narrowly escaped pneumonia") suffered intensely.

The defendant railroad company admitted liability and asked only that the jury be instructed as to the measure of damages.

The elder daughter received a judgment for a thousand dollars; mother, $800, and each of the two young "narrowly escaped pneumonia" $500. Whereupon the railroad company appealed, contending that these judgments were excessive, and by gravity, the higher court agreed with the railroad company that the judgments were a little steep and held that unless the amounts were reduced one-half by a remittitur the judgments would be reversed and a new trial ordered.

It affords me great glee and gratification to see anybody collect anything from a railroad company. I remember how hard it was to collect a cent which railroad company stole from me by means of a dishonest slot machine which was working for the company, but not for the passenger. And I remember how hard it was to raised $5 a ton as long as the miners demand. Miners denied this.

According to one of the members of the conference, the miners had said through their representative, John J. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, that they cared nothing for public opinion, but would remain firm against arbitration.

Advices Change in Attitude.

When the conference started Tuesday Chairman Alvin M. Lewis advised the miners to "change their spirit" and not continue to hold the position that arbitration would necessarily work against them.

Adjourning came on the eve of special session of the Pennsylvania legislature at which Governor Pinchot is expected to urge measures to end the strike.

Some observers look for federal intervention if nothing comes of the Pennsylvania legislature's action.

Statement By Lewis.

News of the break in the ranks of the operators on arbitration did not come from the miners, but was followed by a formal statement by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in which Lewis mentioned the reported division among the operators without naming the company.

The operators' refusal to settle, he said, was dictated by less than 25 per cent of the producing tonnage of the anthracite region.

The Lehigh, Reading and Maderia companies represent the amount of tonnage mentioned by Lewis.

Lewis charged that the operators in conference resisted settlement of any of the miners' plans because they had agreed last July to hold out for a wage scale which would permit the "poorest" companies, operating with high royalty charges and under inefficient management, to remain in the market.

FIGHT OVER FARM RELIEF INDICATED

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine to exchange views. The secretary had invited them to Washington to discuss the surplus of farm products.

It was announced that the administration is prepared to go beyond the position outlined by President Coolidge in his Chicago speech. Mr. Jardine is expected to visit the farm paper editors and also other proposals for artificially enhancing farm product prices.

Revolt Exaggerated.

C. L. Richardson, of Iowa, president of the National Corn Growers' association, told President Coolidge that the so-called revolt of the corn belt has been exaggerated. He denied that the farmers have declared war on the protective tariff and asserted that they could work out their own salvation if given such aid in disposal of their export surplus as proposed in the Dickinson bill. The credit situation in Iowa, he said, had been greatly improved by the loans of the two intermediate credit banks established in that state recently.

Judge Bingham, in his address to the council of cooperatives, praised President Coolidge for modifying his attitude in the last year and unreservedly adopting the cooperative marketing policy urged upon him by the cooperatives. He called upon the agricultural industry to accept the president's leadership. He urged cooperative marketing be given a fair trial and endorsed the administration cooperative marketing bill, which was drafted by the cooperatives.

Coming to the surplus question, he said that the Chicago wheat price is now 15 cents above Winnipeg, the 42 cents a bushel tariff is evidently effective to some extent.

Wheat Growers Dissatisfied.

"But the wheat growers say this is not sufficient," he continued. "They complain that they are not able to get all the good effects of the tariff, although they claim that business gets all the good effects of industrial tariffs."

"If the exportable surplus is the thing that breaks the market on wheat, why is it that Canada, selling more than three hundred million bushels of wheat, about three-fourths of the crop in the world market, with no tariff to help her, with no government surplus corporation to aid—but with a powerful cooperative marketing association built up under the brilliant leadership of men like Brownlee and McPhail, is able to give greater returns to their wheat growers of Canada than the wheat growers of our own great states like Kansas, Nebraska and Minnesota?"

The Canadians are organized; only a small part of our growers has learned organization.

Domestic Problem.

"If the country exports 20 per cent of the crop, it is a huge export quantity, which is essentially a domestic problem, and the corn production is so concentrated that it is handled practically by the efforts of the few states which export it. Yes, some of their leaders clamor for an export corporation, they have been caught by words and phrases and not by thoughts and facts."

"This surplus problem cannot be written into legislation until we recognize what surplus means. Crop surplus is inevitable in some line or another."

"The problem of a surplus is a huge problem. Much has been said on it; much has been written about it; many are following like sheep where a few bold voices are heard. They are listening to the easy way out. They are looking for a quick relief. They are not looking for a permanent relief in the system which comes from men themselves, upheld by the constant activity of men themselves, and sustained by the responsibility of the growers themselves."

with such beneficial results in the past."

The agricultural program was outlined in the afternoon session by Dr. T. J. McArthur, of Cordele, John Slater, of Douglas, president of the Georgia association, also spoke. Mr. Slater asked support of the Kiwanis in the advertising program undertaken by his association for 1926.

Several addresses of club interest were delivered at the morning session, among them talks by O. S. Cummings, of Clearwater, Fla., international trustee; C. C. Bunn, of Cedarhurst, retiring district secretary on "Efficiency in Club Work"; Harry S. Strozzer, Macon city attorney, on "Our Organization"; former State Senator W. Mundy, of Cedarhurst, past district governor of Kiwanis, on "Finance," and Peyton Anderson, of Macon, on the Martha Berry schools.

Authorize Road Fund.

By unanimous vote, the trustees decided to levy one dollar per capita and raise a sum of approximately $3,000 to defray traveling expenses of a committee which they authorized Judge Reed to appoint, for active solicitation of a road fund.

The action came shortly after noon, following much talk as to what form of road improvement financing should be endorsed by the state Kiwanis.

EDUCATION BOARD FAILS TO ELECT LEADER

J. W. Maddox, Mrs. Nelson, T. J. McLenon, for Mr. Gaines, Commissioner Therrill, Mills, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. A. E. Wilson; for Mr. Therrill, Commissioners Gaines and W. D. Hoffman.

Eubanks Holds Five.

On the third ballot, Dr. Eubanks received the votes of the five members who voted for him on the first ballot. Mr. Therrill was given the votes of Commissioners Gaines, Mills and Mrs. Wilson. Mr. Gaines received the votes of Commissioners Therrill and Eubanks and Mr. Mills received the vote of Mrs. Peterson.

On the second ballot, Dr. Eubanks received the vote of Mr. Hoffman in addition to the five who voted for him throughout the balloting. Mr. Therrill received the votes of three who favored him on the first ballot and in addition the vote of Mrs. Peterson, while Mr. Gaines received the vote of Commissioner Eubanks and Therrill.

On the third ballot, Mr. Therrill gained another vote, giving him five, when Commissioner Hoffman joined the group who had voted for him on the preceding ballot, and Mr. Gaines held the two votes that had been recorded for him.

Eubanks Does Not Vote.

After the third ballot, Dr. Eubanks on each ballot did not vote and the result on the fourth ballot was the same as the third except for Dr. Eubanks' vote for Mr. Gaines.

From the fifth to the fifteenth ballots, inclusive, the vote was the same, a brief recess that had been ordered having failed to change any votes.

On the sixteenth ballot, Mr. Gaines increased his votes to three, after Mills and Hoffman had switched from Mr. Therrill.

This made the count stand: Eubanks, 5; Gaines, 3; Therrill, 3.

On the seventeenth ballot, Mr. Gaines polled five votes with Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. Wilson joining Gaines' forces. The balloting then stood: Gaines, 5; Eubanks, 5; Therrill, 1.

Hoffman Fails To Vote.

From the seventeenth to the twenty-third ballots, inclusive, the voting was the same. At that time Commissioner Hoffman announced he would like to withhold his vote for the time being, as things seemed to be hopelessly tied up.

The twenty-fourth ballot was the same except for the lack of a vote from Mr. Hoffman, cutting Mr. Gaines' vote to 4. No change was recorded until the twenty-seventh vote when Commissioner Therrill voted for Mrs. Peterson, thereby reducing Mr. Gaines' vote to three. Throughout the twenty-eighth ballot the voting was the same and on the twenty-ninth ballot Commissioner Therrill gave his vote to Mr. Mills.

On the thirtieth ballot, Mr. Gaines received the votes of Commissioners Therrill, Mills, Mrs. Peterson and Mrs. Wilson, for four votes; Dr. Eubanks received the votes of his five "stand-patters" and Mr. Gaines continued to vote for Mr. Hoffman.

From then on throughout the fifty-second ballot the balloting was the same.

Therrill Gains Vote.

The only change noted in the fifty-third ballot was an added vote for Commissioner Therrill, occasioned by Commissioner Hoffman resuming balloting.

From the fifty-fourth ballot throughout the eighty-eighth, there was no change.

Commissioner Mills moved for an adjournment for one hour's recess and then resumption of balloting. The Mills motion prevailed.

to have it. Petty politics, jealousies and vascillating policies must be avoided. The aim of the department should be steady enforcement of all laws all the time and not in occasional drives to placate public clamor.

"Officers who are unfit for active duty should be pensioned. People who pay taxes are entitled to protection to life and property. They have made other provisions for those who are unable to work. Greater care and investigation also should be given new applicants."

Ban on Drunkenness.

"Drunkenness will not be countenanced and will mean immediate dismissal, and that dismissal will be final and not merely a period of probation until political pressure can get in its work," Mr. Hartsfield continued.

"There is no place in the city, high or low, rich or poor, white or black, that is immune from police action if the law is being violated."

"If the committee will bow straight to the line of law enforcement and protection of life and property, steadfastly adhering to this policy throughout the year and making every official action meet this test, it will win public approval and confidence."

"Otherwise the appointment becomes a political graveyard."

From $75 To $200 a Month In Nine Months Is Record of Southern Business College Pupil

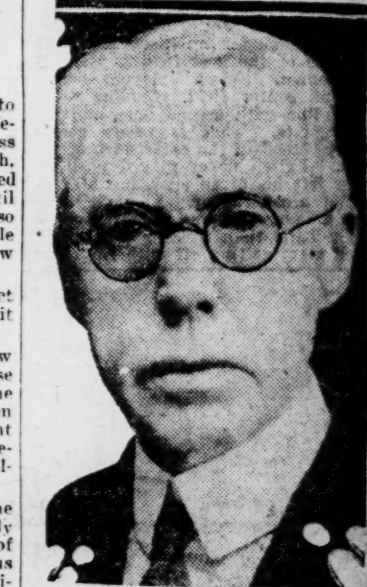

Many Are Entering the School Whose Graduates Succeed.

Beginning in a position, sent to last March by the Employment department of The Southern Business College, at a salary of $75 a month, Miss Mary Elrod has been advanced from time to time since then, until her salary is now $200 a month, so she informed Mr. Arnold while making a visit to the school a few days ago.

It is truly an acknowledged fact that a Business Education pays if it has been obtained at the Southern. Young people are enrolling now from all parts of the country, because they are constantly reading about the success of those who have taken courses at the Southern. They want to attend the school that shows results, and the Southern Business College does show great results.

There is no secret as to why the Southern's pupils succeed. Manifestly it is because of the thoroughness of the courses of study given. With us the daily work of the student is definitely related to the tasks that he will undertake in the business office. The advanced shorthand student, who writes letters in our stenographic department uses the phraseology of the business office, makes the enclosures that the ordinary letter going from the office requires, makes the necessary carbon copies, does the filing incident to the correspondence, and in many other ways exactly duplicates the work of the stenographer in the business office.

The student of bookkeeping not only makes records, but handles papers identical with those that go through the channels of business every day. The student's work in every department is systematic, thorough and accurate. He is taught the virtues of industry, exactness, persist-

Yellow Jackets Defeat Marquette Quint, 23 to 19

Hansen Starts Second Team; Varsity Comes From Behind To Win

BY H. C. HAMILTON.

Coming from behind only in the latest stages of the second half, Georgia Tech's basketball team won its second straight game in the Tech gymnasium Tuesday afternoon, defeating the strong Marquette college team, 23 to 19.

The game was one of the hardest fought of the season and taxed every Tech resource before it finally was stowed away as a Yellow Jacket victory. Marquette led through practically all the game and its guarding was so alert, its passing attack so swift and determined that it appeared the visiting five would win.

Coch Hansen started the game with second string players, Barron and Wilder as forwards, Rauber at center, and Ballard and Jamison at the guards. Before the first half was over, however, the entire first string was rushed in to stop the dashing attack of Marquette, but the second squad also started the second half.

The second squad played Marquette off its feet in the second half, but when the going got too hot Hansen again sent in the first string men and the game was tied about four minutes before the final whistle blew.

Fast Attack Flashed.

The attack of the visiting players was lightning-like. Formations were run off with a dexterity which made it appear they were much superior to the locals, but their basket shooting was atrocious, which added to many misfortunes under the basket, kept their total down until reaching distance. They were under or near the basket much more than Tech, but their shots were not dropping. Aside from Rauber, flashy forward, the shooting of all Marquette players was very inaccurate. Rauber ended the half for a total of 10 points, more than half of his team's score.

Bob Wilder and the irreplaceable George starred for Tech. Wilder at forward kept the ball in motion, territory a great deal of the time, while the guarding of Georgia, to say nothing of very good work by Ballard and Jamison, who alternated with Nick, kept the right forwards, E. Herte and Algeo, from scoring more than two points.

Marquette Leads.

The game was scarcely under way when Marquette ended the first point, a free throw, and a moment later ended another. Tech tied the count with a basket from the field, but Marquette forged to the front with another successful free toss.

Tech went into the lead at 4 to 3, but the visitors quickly snatched this away and led by a very short count from there until Tech tied it at 17 to 17. Only the hardest sort of playing kept the game in a tie, and then only in the dying minutes of the game.

The difference in the guarding of the regular varsity and the second string men is clearly apparent in an analysis of the figures. In the first half the Marquette five shot 20 times from the field against the second team, completing three baskets. In the second half against the second squad Marquette shot for the basket 23 times and caged three of the tries.

When the first team was in action during the first half Marquette fired 16 times at the hoop, dropping one through, but in the second half only two shots were started and none of them pocketed.

The game figures show that Tech's second team caged two of six tries in the first half and three of 15 in the second half. The varsity dropped

COBB DEVOTES ATTENTION TO EARLY GAMES

Detroit, Mich., January 12.—(AP)—The April and May performance of the Detroit Tigers is the problem worrying President Navin and Manager Ty Cobb. For the last two campaigns the early season form of the team has set up handicaps insurmountable later in the year.

The longest winning streak of the 1925 American league season was staged by the Tigers—from August 24 to Labor day—ten consecutive victories. It landed them in first division, but the task is to prevent recurrence of the disastrous openings.

Starting June 16 the Tigers took nine games in a row, and Manager Cobb hopes to set ahead this early season spurt by several weeks.

In common with most of the major league clubs, Detroit has a pitching problem, perhaps more acute than the others. The rest of the squad likely will make its bow in the same roles as last year unless Cobb can develop one of his relief outfielders into first string material and give him a chance to run the team from the bench. Ty slumped a bit in fielding last season, but made up for it by his strength at the bat. He was not far behind Harry Heilmann, his rightfielder, who led the league last season in hitting with .393.

Among his regular twirlers, Cobb has only Hollaway, Whitehill and, the aging George Daus, whose 1925 performances were commendable. Only heavy hitting by the Tiger sluggers saved Hollaway on several occasions, as his showing in earned runs per game put him low on the list. Owen Carroll, a college prospect, was used sparingly last season, but may burst forth as a regular in 1926. Wells, Stoner and Ripp Collins were generally ineffective last year and the training squad will likely include a considerable number of hurling candidates.

Ty is as non-committal this year as he has been in the last 20 in discussing plans and prospects in the rookie line, but to strengthen the pitching staff he has acquired Barfoot, former Cardinal; Moore, from Toronto, Johns, Hubbell, Gibson and Watt, the last three being regulars in 1926. Woodall will be assisted by Manion, a veteran of the minor leagues, behind the bat.

His first base will be Bus, at second, O'Rourke or Burke and at shortstop, Johnny Tavener, one of the Tigers' greatest finds of recent years.

The third base job is wide open with Warner, a late 1925 acquisition, Mulder, Gehring and Herrington, all classed as possibilities. If one of these develops, and the pitching recruits show one or two good men to help George Daus carry the burden, the Tigers, with their well-known heavy hitting may prove formidable in the 1926 race.

For several years Cobb has been the lightest taskmaster in the majors for stiff spring training but to get away from the early season slump he may return to the time honored methods which lead to much perspiration.

Chicago Seems Certain Of Army-Navy Classic

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, D. C., January 12.—The city of Chicago seems to have this year's Army-Navy football game in the bag, if one may use a diplomatic phrase, so far above the humble station of the sport page.

It appears that the Honorable and Irresistible Fred A. Britten, member of congress from Illinois, has finally convinced Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, superintendent of the United States Naval Academy, that an invitation to Chicago is no more to be ignored than an invitation to Leavenworth. When one is invited, one goes.

There has been no official intimation, as they say in Washington, that the admiral has actually chosen Chicago as the site of this year's game and the picturesque attendant proceedings. But the Honorable and Irresistible Britten has let go his hold on the admiral's lapels and it would be a hilarious joke to suppose that he would let go if he hadn't been assured that the Navy, in the exercise of its biennial prerogative, would choose Chicago.

The Honorable and so forth Mr. Britten has turned attention to Major General Fred Sladen, the superintendent of West Point, and any one who has ever tried to resist an invitation from the Honorable and so forth Mr. Britten will know just how much chance General Sladen has.

In fact, it appears that General Sladen has his choice of one answer to Chicago's invitation, that answer being, in substance, "Yes." It may be expressed in some such form as: "Oh, all right, dammit!" or "You win, leave us have peace!" but the tenor of the one answer that the general has his choice of is "Yes."

You see, General Sladen, under the strict letter of the football engagement with Annapolis, actually has about as much voice in the selection of this year's locale as the New York boxing commission has in the selection of the sites of the twelve best knockouts of 1926.

Within certain geographical limitations, which embrace Chicago, the Navy has the right to select the spot, and it is hoped for his own sake that the general likes the spot that the Navy selects.

There has been no change in the last offer that was presented to Admiral Nulton by the city of Chicago per Mr. Britten. This offer would give the Army and Navy athletic associations each 40,000 tickets, which would be 11,000 more tickets to each than they received as their allotment for the game in New York last fall. If they wish to, as they doubtless will, they may turn back 10,000 of these tickets to the city of Chicago, which will pay the regular price for them and then sell them for whatever the traffic will stand.

Thus, Chicago will have a total of 40,000 tickets for more or less public sale. The sale probably will be considerably less public than the public suppose, but the public is always over-optimistic about tickets. In this connection it might be stated that the numerous middle-western congressmen, each with a unanimous desire for tickets for themselves, their relatives, and their constituents, and having subscribed to Chicago's petition for the game, they cannot be told to form in line on the right.

The Honorable Mr. Britten is the only one to be lauded, or lapped, as the case may be, for the transfer of the game from New York to the middle-west, assuming that it will be transferred. A number of honorable gentlemen implicated in the law-making profession of the capital last year, and named to his petition but it was Britten who went swashbuckling through the navy department when nobody really thought the eastern monopoly could be broken. As a member of the house naval affairs committee, he commanded

CHANGING STARS IN GOLF FIRMAMENT

BY NORMAN E. BROWN.

As the leading brothers of the professional golfing fraternity hie around the links of the south and tropical west there is a feeling among close followers of the game that the 1926 season will see some of the best-known stars of the game fighting to keep from being pushed entirely off the face of public interest by the younger element.

A few years back, for instance, Walter Hagen, Long Jim Barnes and Jack Hutchison ruled the roost. The others were just background for them in the big tournaments.

Hutchison was the first one of the trio to slip. He has tried in vain the last four years to draw the line light by victory in one of the major tournaments and has failed.

Long Jim Barnes seemed about destined to step out of the limelight when he did a comeback by winning the British open title last summer.

Just how long Barnes can hold the pace he set that day and in tournaments later remains to be seen. He is 38 and has had a long life in tournament play.

Walter Hagen boasts of but one major title now—the national professional championship. He is still the greatest of all tournament players, due to his sangfroid, his coolness under stress, and his usually absolute control over his shots. But

ANDY SMITH'S LAST STORY "NOT QUESTION OF WINNING OR LOSING" WAS PLEA FOR FOOTBALL

Chicago, January 12.—(AP)—The last public message of Andy Smith, California football coach, who died last week in Philadelphia, was that "winning is not the thing in football—the game is the thing."

He sent the article to the All-Sports magazine just before leaving California for the Cornell-Pennsylvania game Thanksgiving day. Soon afterwards he was stricken with pneumonia. The message will be published next month.

"It is not the question of winning or losing in any particular game," wrote the famous coach of the Golden Bears, "or for that matter in any particular season. Winning in football involves winning the games of a season, the respect of one's players, the confidence of the public and winning a victory over one's self."

"I have found that often it is possible to win when to all outward appearances I had lost. If the members of a football team which are down to defeat before a superior team allows themselves to be depressed by the thought of defeat, the chances are they will actually lose, while if they are able to probe by their own mistakes they may well gain by the defeat."

his work last season was anything but typical of his game.

And when Leo Diegel, pride of Canada, turned Hagen back in the Canadian open, the former again indicated quite clearly that he is ready to demand a place in the sun. Hagen and Diegel were paired together in the last round. Hagen won two strokes behind the Canadian, but that ordinarily would have made the battle more interesting, with Hagen in his usual form. Hagen's tournament play has been a repetition of coming from behind—outplaying the leader.

But Diegel matched Hagen hole for hole. The move who once won the British open title two out of three years took an eight on the first hole, a par four. From that point on his game was off form. Diegel played brilliant golf through the entire day.

Diegel's game last year proved that he has eliminated the fault that early handicapped him—that of "keeping his feet" at crucial moments.

The Canadian, however is but one of close to a dozen of the younger set that has been fighting for the limelight the Big Three have held for years.

Numbered among the others are Gene Sarazen, Johnny Farrell, Bill Melhorn, Mike Brady, Bob MacDonald and more lately Cyril Walker and Willie MacFarlane.

It's going to be a tough year for the Big Three.

Boxers Scrap Without Pay

New York, January 12.—Things are coming to such a pass, in the boxing game these days that fighters are beginning to stage some of their bouts right at the back door of the state boxing commission. Johnny Reiser, a lightweight boxer, and Patsy Haley, former hantam scrapper, and now a veteran referee, put on a jam for the boys right outside the panels of the private council room of the boxing bosses in the Flatiron building this afternoon, which, while it lasted, was a bear. No decision will be had until the commissioners meet again on Friday.

Johnny Reiser, son of a well-known "job," the Barber, had a bout at the Commonwealth Sporting club several weeks ago against one Billy White, in which Haley refereed. Patsy ruled against Reiser and the boxing solons today inflicted a suspension of 90 days against the fighter and his irate dad. Then, as they emerged from the sanctum young Reiser let one fly from the floor and it connected with little Patsy's broad chin. The gray-haired arbiter did a hand-spring, but jumped up quickly to give his much younger and heavier opponent an argument. The belligerents were separated before damage was done. The Reisers now face further discipline.

Jimmy Johnson, manager of Mike McTigue, appeared before the commission, and wanted to know when Paul Berlenbach will fight his Irish champion. Jess McMahon, matchmaker at the New Garden, said he would make every effort to settle upon a date in a few days.

Try this better cigarette tobacco

JUST get yourself a tidy red tin or a toppy red bag of Prince Albert. Roll a cigarette and light up. Half close your eyes and pull that wonderful, fragrant smoke deep down into your system. Boy, there IS a smoke! Cool as a breeze from the North. Sweet as apple cider.

P. A. is crimp-cut and stays put. Doesn't land in your lap or blow all over the landscape. Be glad that Prince Albert rolls easier, but buy it because it makes a better, tastier cigarette. You can prove that on your fingers, if you get what we mean. And you do.

Prince Albert is comfortable too. Can't nip your tongue or play hob with your throat. The Prince Albert process clamped the lid on bite and parch at the very outset of P. A.'s brilliant career. Try a makin's cigarette with this better tobacco today.

By the way, Prince Albert goes great in a jimmy-pipe too. If you have never been able to hit it off with a pipe, try this friendly tobacco. Men who thought they never could smoke a pipe are now among P. A.'s most loyal fans. Get some P. A. today. Enjoy it either way.

Atlanta's National Banks Report Banner Business At Their Annual Meetings

Reelection of Officers and Directors and Promotion of Officials Features of Session.

Reelection of all officers and directors featured the annual meetings of shareholders of national banks in Atlanta Tuesday.

The Atlanta and Lowry National bank and its affiliated company, the Trust Company of Georgia, reelected officers and directors, and elected James J. Goodrum, Jr., manager of the bond department and associated with the Trust Company of Georgia for many years, a director of both organizations.

All officers and directors of the Fourth National bank were likewise reelected. Two members of the staff of this institution were promoted to official positions. R. C. Williams, formerly credit manager, was made vice president, and W. LeRoy Daughtry, in the past associated with the business development department, was elected assistant trust officer. In addition, reports of gratifying extensions in all lines of business were made.

The Fulton National bank likewise reelected its officers and directors, and added two new names to its directorate. Thomas C. Law, head of a well-known Atlanta chemical company and former president of the Atlanta Rotary Club, and J. H. Hines, prominent local insurance man, are the two new members of the directorate.

Report Successful Year.

Complete satisfaction with the successful year enjoyed during 1925 was expressed at the meeting. Cone E. Bond, of the loan and discount department, was promoted to a position of assistant cashier. Other business transacted was of a routine nature.

All institutions—the Atlanta and Lowry National bank, the Trust Company of Georgia, the Fourth National bank and the Fulton National bank—reported splendid business growth during 1925 and expressed belief that 1926 will be the year of greatest progress in the history of Atlanta and the southeast.

Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the board for both the Atlanta and Lowry National bank and the Trust Company of Georgia, in his annual report declared that the eyes of the entire nation are directed toward the southeast. He expressed belief that the coming 10 years will witness an industrial and business expansion in this section unparalleled in the history of the nation.

Drawing attention to the recent decision of R. H. Macy & Co., Sears, Roebuck company and other big national concerns to establish branch headquarters in Atlanta, Mr. Maddox said that this was the best possible proof of the soundness of Atlanta's future. He expressed the hope that the institutions which he heads may be able to take their full share of the work of development which looms in the immediate future.

$640,000 in Dividends.

The Atlanta and Lowry National bank has paid out $640,000 in dividends during the year, which is at the rate of 16 per cent on its outstanding stock. Shareholders declared the year just closed the best in the institution's history and expressed themselves as well pleased with the achievements of the 12-month period.

John K. Outley, president of the Fourth National bank, said that 1925, from the standpoint of business generally, was a very satisfactory year and voiced favorable opinion of the outlook for Atlanta and the southeast in 1926.

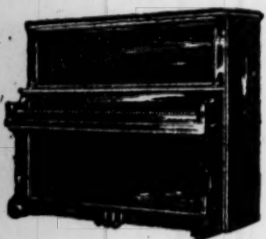

According to the report to the shareholders, the Fourth National on December 31 was serving 75,083 patrons, a net gain of 3,256 during the year. Deposits were $36,558,474.39, an increase during the year of $4,356,217.23. Substantial increases both in number and in volume of savings accounts as well as of individual and commercial checking accounts were recorded.

Williams Promoted.

R. C. Williams, promoted to vice president of the Fourth National, has been credit manager for some time past. He is a native of Mississippi, spent his boyhood at Evergreen, Ala., and began his banking experience there. Later he was with the Capital National bank in Montgomery and then served for several years as na-

Adams immediately entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to serve one and a half to five years by Judge John D. Humphries, and reached the Bellwood convict camp in time for supper Tuesday night.

Adams was arrested in Miami at the instance of Detectives Poole and Smith. He had in his possession, according to officers, an automobile which was stolen from W. Y. Carter, 341 Gordon street.

Barrow County Farmers Show Interest in Plan For Diversified Crops

Winder, Ga., Jan. 12.—(Special.)—The first of a series of meetings planned by Dr. A. M. Soule, of the State College of Agriculture, was held at the courthouse in Winder Monday. A representative crowd of farmers and business men were in attendance, about 200 in all. The vocational classes in agriculture, boys from Cook's consolidated school, Winder school and County Line, under Professor George I. King, teacher of the classes, were also present. There are 60 boys in the county taking vocational agriculture in these three schools.

Professor J. Phil Campbell, of the State College of Agriculture, had charge of the meeting and spoke of the plan that Dr. Soule and J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, were trying to put over for the agricultural interests of the state.

He used as the basis of his remarks a farmer's plan for general diversification, not using cotton as a main crop, but as a special or surplus crop. He mentioned the conditions that exist in the area and clearly showed the need of a full feed crop in this section.

J. C. Munn, from the state department of agriculture, was on insect control in the cotton crop and showed the folly of planting cotton now and not making provision for fighting insects that prey on cotton. He also urged the advantages to be gained in cutting the cotton acreage, not only in this section, but throughout the cotton belt.

M. H. Cottrell, representing the Georgia State Bankers' association, spoke on the farmer's credit, how best obtained and how best conserved. He is a man who has traveled extensively and observed crop and credit conditions in various parts of the country. His remarks were a resume of these observations and what the results were in other sections.

The evening marked this meeting showed that farmers and business men are interested in putting over a unified effort in Barrow county this year.

"BITS OF FIMININE FIMERY GATHERED WHILE STUDYING ABROAD"

Atlanta Girls Display Colorful Shawls Brought From European Countries

BY BEVERLY BURGESS.

Vivid shawls in a perfect riot of color, tortoise shell combs in wonderful coiffures and ropes of pearls dangling between bare shoulders and falling to the waist line!

Such are some of the fascinating new features in the attractive costumes of the fair ones at a recent formal dance.

Brilliant, colorful, gorgeous shawls!

Can you think of a brighter splash of color that could be added unto the canvas of such a happy scene?

Varied in color were these shawls and also in design and size, but in beauty they differed only in that each was just a little prettier than the other. There were bronze ones, there were red gold, rose—every color!

They came all the way from far away Venice, Naples, Spain, Mexico and Scotland.

Wonderful Art.

The art of shawl-making we have always associated with the warm countries of southern Europe. The climatic thought involved probably was unconsciously responsible for this attitude.

Our very most beautiful creations come from northern Scotland—the home of plaids and woollens—and are made in a little rustic village called Paisley. Our most exquisite pieces are known the world over as "the Paisley shawls."

The whole little town subsists on this wonderful industry. Rare ones also come from the skillful fingers of the shawl-makers of Venice, Naples, Spain and Mexico.

Atlanta Beauties Proud Possessors.

I wonder if it has ever been your good luck to behold lovely Marie Middleton in the rare one which she owns.

Or have you seen that striking beauty, Martina Maddox, draped in hers?

These two lucky Atlanta sub-dantes were fortunate enough to have a whole year abroad recently.

In Paris these two girls, accompanied by Margaret McIntyre and Betty Pou, of Madison, with Mrs. McIntyre acting as chaperone, spent winter before last.

Studying was the thing that worried all their time, as I have said, but just what they were studying most about I wouldn't dare suggest.

This I know: Every short while some lovely piece of feminine finery finds its way to the surface.

What else but this did a girl ever go to Paris to study, anyway? Not in Paris itself were these shawls bought, but the gray French city was indirectly, if not wholly, responsible for such an extravagant indulgence.

Paris was the charming part which they went to the educational party to Venice and Naples sightseeing.

The most worth-while sights for either of these two children of fortune was the charming part which they went to the educational party to Venice and Naples sightseeing.

They did not neglect to be told how enviously all of the girls were watching them with their mouths watering.

And neither did they have to be tipped off as to how very becoming these soft draperies were!

Does a woman—it matters not how very young that woman is—have to be told these things?

Woman's intuition has been the inspiration for writers of days before this.

No one fraction of a second were these shawls laid aside!

No heat nor inconvenience sufficed for this!

Shawl-Dress.

Another exquisite shawl seen at this same function was that worn by Robert Harbour.

You every one know about this young Atlanta's girl's wonderful art.

A Washington University girl she is and all the while she finds time for very intensive work under Mrs. Potter-Spiker. For interpretative dancing she has made quite a reputation for herself and Mrs. Spiker gives every encouragement to her work.

Into a very wonderful dancing frock, Robert has had one of those gorgeous shawls fashioned. It is a Spanish shawl and is in soft, warm reds with heavy embroideries in all of the shades of red.

Can you imagine a more fascinating sight than Robert Harbour with her dark hair and blue eyes in this lovely costume?

Venice Again.

And so there at this same dance who did not see and remark on Mary

Mr. and Mrs. Neely To Honor Pres. And Mrs. Charles Loridan

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Neely will compliment the Alliance Française with an evening party in honor of President and Madame Charles Loridan soon after their return home.

January 17, following a four months' voyage to Europe and the Holy Land.

The regular meeting of L'Alliance Française will be held Thursday at 3:30 o'clock in the pine room of Hotel Ansley when the following program will be presented with first Vice President Mrs. M. S. Slater in the chair:

Mademoiselle Laure Larende will read a short story entitled "L'Obus," from Victoria Sardou. A one-act play "Madame de Noirt," from Carrelles, played by Mesdames Hal Davidson and Laure Lenoir.

At the meeting of L'Alliance Française last week several delightful impromptu features were presented.

Monsieur C. A. Ayah introduced Le Capitaine Rene Fouck, Senateur du Dept des Vosges, who gave a delightful short talk on the reestablishment of France.

Mademoiselle Mary Cecile Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brown, who is the mascot of L'Alliance, was present with her mother and received much attention from the members present.

Monsieur Leon Boret from Beanne Cote d'or, France, en route to Florida for his health, was welcomed by the organization.

Madame H. F. Myers, formerly of Columbus, Ohio, but now residing in the city, presented a very interesting gift of a collection of French books from President and Madame Loridan was announced as well as the memorial collection of French books from Madame Wogram in honor of her daughter, Madame Enlille Wogram Wellborn, of Atlanta, who was an active member of the alliance and the leader of the French section until her death about two years ago.

Mrs. Beaumont Is Bridge-Tea Hostess.

Miss Katherine McCullough, of Evanston, Ill., the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Canby Wilson, was the honor guest at a bridge-tea given yesterday by Mrs. Walter Beaumont at her home on Peachtree road.

Quantities of pink roses arranged in large silver bowls were arranged attractively throughout the reception room.

Following the game, tea was served at the individual tables.

About 50 guests were present.

"Old Guard" Annual Dinner January 18.

One of the outstanding events, planned for January 18, will be the entertainment at which Atlanta's oldest military organization, "The Old Guard" of the City of Atlanta, reorganized approximately 16 years ago, will be hosts at its 15th annual meeting at a dinner-dance at the Biltmore at 7:30 o'clock.

Few military bodies have played such a conspicuous part in the civic, military and social life of cities in which they flourish as has "The Old Guard," which since its start has shed lustre on the name of Atlanta and by its broad outlook and activity has brought some of the most distinguished visitors to the city.

While much of the Old Guard's history necessarily passes in review, these annual meetings are social occasions as well as where plans for future work are developed, in formal and informal discussion.

Charles P. Byrd is chairman of the committee on arrangement of details of the annual meeting.

Mrs. Davis Gives Bridge-Luncheon.

Mrs. R. C. Hamilton, of Fort Meade, Md., was the honor guest at a bridge-luncheon given by Mrs. C. N. Davis at the Atlanta Biltmore yesterday.

The guests included Mrs. Alfred Chopin and Mozart, is there any popular that Paul Whitman, in his popular, has an international reputation?

All classes of society will be in his audience at this Atlanta appearance but the young, particularly, who can resist the call of the saxophone, trombone and banjo—will be present.

Very teachers will take cognizance and make Friday's work as light as possible. No one, however, could deny these school children this treat of the whole year for them.

Annually this is looked forward to as the outstanding event in the year.

A promise by Mr. Whitman to give request numbers has met with a great appreciation by the public and a bright occasion this will be.

Jazz Dressed Up.

Again cultural Atlanta is to have a musical treat!

This time it will be one which in its appeal will reach the many, for it is to come through the channel of popular, tuneful music.

Thursday night at the auditorium, Paul Whitman, that king of jazz, is to appear.

Refined jazz, classical syncopation, but both jazz and syncopation right on, given on wonderful instruments—the last word in expensive productions of this craft—and by artists who could as skillfully play Beethoven, Chopin and Mozart, is there any popular that Paul Whitman, in his popular, has an international reputation?

Your Boy and Your Girl

BY ARTHUR DEAN, S. D.
The Parent Counsellor

Dr. Dean will answer all signed letters pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Writers are asked to send no more than 100 words of general interest in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if they are stamped, self-addressed envelope is included. Address: Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

Perpetual Motion.

The small child is always in perpetual motion. It is nature's way of developing him. Bandage his eyes, tie his hands, stuff his ears and the parents would find that they had a fool.

Later the boy gets absorbed in developing some perpetual motion machine. For his physics teacher to tell him that it cannot be done only serves to stimulate his inventive genius.

When we are grown up we are in perpetual motion in order to keep the wolf from the door and the bread basket filled.

Evidently perpetual motion starts with the cradle and ends with the grave.

Sale of Dead Horses.

There is pathos as well as humor in the announcement that the United States patent office shortly will sell at auction 150,000 models of useless inventions. All these whimsical fancies were born before 1880, when the patent office stopped requiring a model of each invention registered, and the government can no longer give them storage room.

What a tale of futility it is, this collection! What a litany of struggles come to naught, of denials and sacrifices without a trace of achievement. Consider the absurd roll-call—a self-tipping-hat, a plan to lay a railroad across the ice on Lake Superior, a hook-worm trap, spectacles to give chickens the power of sight after dark, a device for holding a cow's tail, and a hundred weird schemes of perpetual motion. The debris of dreams.

Feeding Father's Horses.

There is one invention of a boy that it is not in this collection. The other day I saw it in my father's old barn. It is a scheme for feeding horses while staying in bed.

It was my job to feed the horses at 4:30 a. m. This went on for several months by the obvious system of getting up and doing it.

But what's the use of studying mechanics in the high school unless one can use it?

I so rigged up an alarm clock that when the alarm went off he handle in the back face turned so that it pulled the arm of a lever which released a weight which in turn hit the bottom of boxes which held the oats. Thus the bottom of six boxes of oats dropped from their hinges and down went the oats to the hay shoot. The oats hit the hay which had been so curled by the fork the night before that it was hard to slide down at the slightest pressure or weight from above.

Once in a dog's age the contraption wouldn't work and father would say, "That fool idea of the boy made the horses lose their breakfast." But 99 times in 100 it did work.

As soon as the alarm started to ring the boy was to stand by his feet and wait for the weight to drop. Then all was silent. Dad turned over for another snooze.

But Sonny slept on. His work was done.

Tallulah School Will Benefit From Albany Tag Day

Albany, Ga., January 12.—Bearing the slogan of "The school belongs to the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs but the children belong to us all," the Albany Woman's club, under the direction of Mrs. H. H. Perry, president, and Mrs. J. M. Patterson, as general chairman, will conduct a tag day and drive for funds for the Tallulah Falls school today.

The aim of this school is to "raise up leaders among our mountain people for work in their own communities," being started several years ago in a small school building. Since that time its growth has been marvelous, and just recently a splendid new plant of seven rooms was completed and dedicated on June 10, 1925.

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA K. FORBES.

SLEEPING FOR BEAUTY.

Some people sleep so that they age during the night. They sleep with closed windows, or with the merest slit open for fresh air, they breathe stale air, they lie under a heavy weight of covers; they rest—if they can call it rest—in awkward, tiring positions. In the morning they are tired, and each morning, a little more tired as the cumulative effect of a lot of bad nights wears them out.

Your sleep should be a beauty treat. The first essential is that there be enough of it; eight hours at least, more if you are nervous and sleep lightly. The second is fresh air; more cases of bad sleeping are due to lack of this than you imagine. If you can sleep out of doors, or with all your windows open so that your room is flooded with clean air, then you are spending at least a third of your life—a third of every day—breathing health into your body. Indeed, I think fresh air should be the first essential, for eight or more hours in a stuffy room won't rest you much.

If you have trouble going to sleep, and light, warm covers. The great value of an eiderdown quilt is that it has the warmth of three blankets, and the weight of less than one. It seems to adapt itself to the temperature, too, for it isn't too warm or moderately cool nights and yet it is always warm enough on the freezing ones.

If you have trouble going to sleep, eat something at bed time, hot milk and a few crackers are good for you, but chocolate is, too, unless it makes you wakeful. Hot, very weak tea makes me sleepy, with a little sugar and lemon. Something like this draws the blood down from your head to your stomach, and sleep comes more easily.

Learn to lie on your back, with a very thin pillow, or none at all. This keeps the spine straight and helps prevent round shoulders, it lets you breathe better, too.

George V.—It is best not to use a hair brush at all unless you keep it perfectly clean. It is ever experienced matter to neglect that most men should not use a brush at all. Possibly the indiscriminate use of combs and brush has had something to do with men losing their hair in the past.

Mrs. John F. S.—Clean the teeth with milk of magnesia before retiring whenever there is any tendency to acidity. This is particularly advisable after eating sweets during the evening.

Tomorrow—Beware of These Things.

Edna Kent Forbes is now ready to fill a long-felt need on the part of her readers—that of supplying the most important of her excellent beauty hints in an illustrated pamphlet form. To secure this valuable information you must address Miss Forbes in care of this paper, asking for her pamphlet, "Beauty," and enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope (s. a. s. e.) and ten cents in stamps.

"SUMMER" PREVAILS ON ALASKAN COAST

Anchorage, Alaska, January 12.—(AP)—Alaskans of Anchorage, along the railroad belt, as well as in other sections of the territory are still wearing their summer clothing, for the temperature remains most of the time freezing. At Orland, Alaska, this time of the year it is many degrees below zero.

While admitting that the present winter is the mildest ever experienced in Alaska, old-timers recall that almost similar conditions within the last 20 years gave rise to the belief that the Japanese current had changed its course.

him to know it answer it the next evening. My "Elorette List" will help you.

Flapper Dresses.

How absurd our young women dress today. It is positively sinful.

Answer—Grandma, I wouldn't hurt your feelings for the world, but I cannot agree with you. I remember the long sidewalk sweepers, vice-like corsets, bustles and prodigious shoulders. The modern girl had swept away all that physical deceit which you called, I suspect, "modesty." Old-fashioned girls thought much more of their "figure," "shape" or "form" than the present young women. If they didn't why did they put in so much time trying to improve on nature?

The visiting teacher in our city mean by sending "visiting teachers" to our homes asking the mothers a lot of fool questions which are none of their business.

INDIGNANT.

Answer—The visiting teacher tries to discover the difficulties in the home which lead to the child's failure in school. To explain the school work and to help mothers to understand the whole educational game which three parties are playing: the school, the home, and the child.

SLAMS AND SLAMS

By Louise Dooly

WOMEN are the world's ferment, always brewing something. But at that, they give the world its kick.

WE had specialized opportunity of late to consider what a disturbing element our sex can be, while we lay in bed, nursed the grip and watched the world go by through the newspaper.

Now that we can prop a typewriter on our knees, the notes we made about women are away out of date, their subjects crowded into the background by those other women who have crashed the gates of publicity in the last 24 hours.

Were we to write today about those who attained even the front page a few days back, our editor would no doubt remind us, "Woman, this is a daily paper you're writing for, not a weekly."

OF course we might call Countess Karolyi still in the news, since she continues to try to ruffle the security of our state department.

With all the insistence of woman, who has, since time began, got away with "because" as a sufficient reason for doing what she wanted to do, or not doing it when that suited her, the would-be visitor from Hungary refuses to accept Secretary Kellogg's "because" as adequate grounds for keeping her out of the United States.

If the secretary should ask us, we'd say, "Let her come in." Since the land of freedom has been subjected to a live moral collapse in the face of the low life and abnormal psychology in the Hungarian drama imported by American producers, the American stage then surely our political life may withstand any shock Countess Karolyi can have in store for it.

JUST HUMAN.
SHE has probably just talked herself out in Hungary, and wants a new audience. We know just how she feels. Our current cold treatment is good deprived us temporarily of voice. We are convinced, in consequence, that if there is ever any excuse for selfishly, it rests with any woman who, for whatever reason or under whatever circumstances, is not able to talk.

Our prediction about Countess Karolyi is that if she does get by Ellis island her only showing before the American public a week after the ship reporters have taken the bloom off her "newsiness" will be her picture in the advertising sections of the magazines with her testimonial for a certain brand of cold cream. Doubtless she needs the money more than do the prominent American women who have hitherto been this country's chief exploiters in print.

So we say, "Let her in."

VERY PLEASANT.
IN the news is Cora Wilson Stewart, of Kentucky, whose work for the eradication of adult illiteracy through the "moonlight schools" won her the Pictorial Review annual $5,000 prize for the greatest contribution to American civilization by a woman in 1924.

JUSTICE.
THEN there is the clipping somebody sent us about the young German girl in a southern city who had so upset the social serenity of that burg by being beaten by her Greek lover that a self-righteous and high-minded sheriff or something is going to try to rattle the world its kick.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

The Fall of Quebec.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

ALL DURING THE SUMMER OF 1759 WOLFE BESIEGED QUEBEC BUT WITHOUT RESULT, AND FINALLY DECIDED TO STAKE HIS HOPES OF VICTORY ON A BOLD STROKE. ON THE NIGHT OF SEPTEMBER 12, MOVING WITH GREAT STEALTH, HE LANDED WITH A FORCE ON THE QUEBEC SIDE OF THE RIVER AT A DESERTED SPOT ABOVE THE TOWN.

WOLFE HAD PREVIOUSLY PICKED OUT A POINT IN THE ROCKY CLIFFS THAT ROSE HIGH ABOVE THE RIVER THAT COULD BE SCALDED, AND WHEN DAWN CAME THE FRENCH WERE ALARMED TO DISCOVER 4,000 RED COATS MARCHING TO THE ATTACK ON THE PLAINS OF ABRAHAM BEHIND THE TOWN.

MONTCALM, WITH THE FLOWER OF HIS TROOPS, MARCHED OUT TO MEET THE ATTACK BUT, AFTER A FIERCE STRUGGLE, THE FRENCH LINE WAVED AND GAVE. THE ONSLAUGHT OF THE BRITISH AND HE WAS FORCED TO RETREAT. IN THE MOMENT OF VICTORY, THE COURAGEOUS YOUNG WOLFE WAS PIERCED BY THREE BULLETS AND FELL, DYING.

A FEW MOMENTS LATER THE GALLANT MARQUIS DE MONTCALM ALSO RECEIVED A FATAL WOUND AND DIED BEFORE THE CITY SURRENDERED. THE VICTORIOUS BRITISH TROOPS OCCUPIED QUEBEC AND ITS FALL CAUSED THE COLLAPSE OF THE FRENCH RESISTANCE.

Uncle Ray's Corner

Nero

Soon after Rome came to be ruled by emperors, a woman named Agrippina married the emperor, Claudius. She was a widow, and to the royal palace she brought her 11-year-old son. This youth was to be known in history as Nero, but he started in life with a much longer name.

The palace was another boy, the son of the emperor, Agrippina did what she could to turn her husband's mind against her stepson, and in favor of the young Nero. As a result, Nero was named as the next in line for the throne. Three years later the emperor died. It is believed that he was poisoned by Agrippina.

Nero, a youth only 16 years old, now came to the throne. Through him, the mother ruled for a time; but in the course of a few years, Nero proved that he had a strong will. The queen mother became angry, and told him that she would put his stepbrother on the throne. In reply, Nero caused that prince to be poisoned.

Four years later, the plotting Agrippina was killed by soldiers, ordered to the deed by her own son. Nero, freed of all rivals at the age of 21, Nero set about being emperor in earnest. What a curious emperor he made! His great hope was to be known as a singer, musician and actor.

At the age of 21 he appeared on the stage at Pompeii. Two years later he made a tour of Greece, and took part in contests of various kinds. To win his favor, the Greeks named him the winner in each contest.

While Nero was emperor, a fire swept over Rome, and laid more than half of the city in ruins. It used to be commonly said that Nero caused the fire to be started, but no proof exists that he had anything to do with it.

After the fire, Rome was built up again into a better looking city. The houses were not jammed so closely together, and broad streets took the place of narrow alleys. Nero then built his famous palace, known as the "Golden House." The palace was so named because of its many golden ornaments. With its gardens, pools and hunting grounds, it covered a square mile. The palace showed a selfish streak in Nero—he was willing to take for his own use a square mile of land in the heart of the city.

A Roman general in Spain—named Galba—decided to march to Rome and make himself the ruler. News of this spread, and Nero became fearful for his very life. He fled from the Golden House to the home of a friend four miles from Rome.

The Roman senators passed a sentence of death against Nero. Soldiers on horseback rode to capture him, but when they reached him he was dead. He had died from the stroke of a dagger or sword. As nearly as we are able to find out, he had been killed by one of his servants at his own request. At the time of death he was only 30 years old.

Uncle Ray
Tomorrow—Romans at War.

Q—What is the Locarno pact?
A—The Locarno pact is an agreement between nations entered into with the purpose of giving security against war. It is the president of the United States becomes president his plate is not filled by any single official until after the next election. In the meantime the president "pro tempore" of the senate presides over the senate when it is in session. Should the new president die before the next election his place is taken by the secretary of state.

The GILDED ROSE

BY MAY CHRISTIE

Landis returns from Jersey, leaves Lydia and upon finding his wife's door locked decides to go out at his club. Early the next morning he receives a phone call from Lydia.

CHAPTER XXXIX.
Interference.

"Good morning, my dear child! Not up yet? And where is Landis?"

In the gold and ivory bedroom where Rosilyn was still reclining, Mrs. Ridgeway, senior, stopped to implant a kiss upon her daughter-in-law's smooth cheek.

The girl sat up in bed, her hair tumbled on her shoulders, and her eyes blinking at the newcomer.

"I didn't know the time. We were very late last night—"

"Aha! Gay honeymoon! I simply couldn't make you hear when I phoned from down below. Is Landis still slumbering?"

"I don't know. I suppose he's in his room—"

With determined tread, Mrs. Ridgeway, senior, crossed the sitting-room towards the other bedroom door. In the days of her own honeymoon, though, she had no question of this "separate" idea.

But of course the world had changed since then, and one must march with the times.

She flung the door of the other apartment open, and perceived an empty bed, the coverlet neatly folded, and the sleeping-suit laid out as though in anticipation of its owner's advent. Graciously! That meant, without a doubt, that Landis had been out all night!

"She hesitated, then returned to Landis' life."

"You said you were both very late last night. At what hour did Landis return, my dear?"

Rosilyn busied herself with a silken wrap about her shoulders, fastening it carefully before she said:

"Oh, I came back a little before he did. I can't stand too much gaiety, you know."

"And he didn't come with you?"

The girl evaded the older woman's glance.

"A friend brought me back to the hotel. Landis must have followed soon after."

"Odd! His bed hasn't been slept in."

Rosilyn gave no sign, though her heart beat painfully.

"We were all very late, and I wouldn't be surprised if he'd lain on the couch in the sitting-room for a bit, and then dressed a-dog round to his club, or something."

Mrs. Ridgeway, senior, seated herself on a high-backed chair.

"You're pecking up the ways of the modern set quicker than I thought you would!"

"And do you blame me?" Rosilyn smiled at her mother-in-law. She would keep her flags flying. This naughty lady should never find out what she suffered.

"D'you mind if I telephone for coffee?"

"There was a pregnant pause. And then, setting down her coffee-cup, the older woman said, brusquely but sincerely:

"You'll find your feet among our set! When I spoke of not giving Landis too much rope, I didn't mean that he would necessarily hang himself. I only wanted to convey a hint that the young men with whom he has mixed are not demi-gods. But with the right woman's influence Landis could become something rather fine."

Smith Newlyweds Are Honeymooning On Florida Island

Boca Grande, Fla., January 12.—Seeking a quiet and secluded place for their honeymoon, the former Consul General Vanderbilt and Earl E. T. Smith declare they have found it on romantic Gasparilla island here, where automobiles seldom are seen and only one mail arrives daily from the mainland.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, whose wedding last week in the Vanderbilt mansion of Fifth avenue in New York was the outstanding society event of the season, are spending their honeymoon hunting sea shells on the gulf beach and playing golf. They arrived Sunday.

The island was named for the famous pirate, Gasparilla, who, according to legend, exploited this section long before there was a Florida. Boca Grande is the only town on the island and it has only 354 inhabitants.

MACON POSTMASTER TAKES OFFICE OATH

Macon, Ga., January 12.—(AP)—Fox D. Stephens furnished bond and was sworn in as postmaster of Macon today. However, he will not take office until his bond has been approved.

The committee will have before it a bill by its chairman, Representative Butler, of Pennsylvania, proposing replacement of the Shenandoah with a dirigible three times its size at a cost of $5,000,000.

The scope of the hearings, however, will be much wider, Mr. Butler having announced that he wished to determine once and for all time whether huge air liners are of any practical value in naval operations.

Secretary Wilbur, Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired president of naval general board, and Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the naval air service, will be the first witnesses questioned by the committee.

The appropriations recommended for naval lighter-than-air craft development work for the next fiscal year will be known tomorrow, when the sub-committee charged with drafting the annual navy department supply bill submits its report.

ATLANTA

A city of homes and home owners

*"To hie him home, at evening's close,
To sweet repast and calm repose."
---Thomas Gray.*

ATLANTA is a city of homes---homes that offer the peace and rest at the end of each day's long toil which is the desire of every whispering heart. Atlanta leads the cities of the United States in the ratio of home owners, a fact which is significant beyond any other one thing which may be said in behalf of the city. Visitors to Atlanta are always deeply impressed with the miles upon miles of quiet streets, beautiful in their setting of trees and flower gardens which cluster about the homes in which the people live. A recent visitor to Atlanta, Mr. John Drinkwater, great British poet and playwright, remarked as he was driven about the residential section of the city:

"I can now understand, as I did not ever before, what Pope must have meant when he wrote those marvelously beautiful lines---

'His own home, deep imagined in his soul' for I am impressed with the fact that these houses all seem to speak to me of persons who live in them because they love their dwelling places."

Atlanta is deeply interested in furthering this home spirit among her people. It is the philosophy of Atlantans that banks and factories and stores and railroads are ultimately valuable only to the degree that they are operated and directed for the purpose of making happy and contented the people of this and other communities. Atlanta's show places, therefore, are not her towering office buildings and her elegantly appointed places of commerce and industry, but rather the stretches of boulevards bordered by the homes of her people. Whether the houses are expensive or not does not detract from the deeper charm of their home-likeness and the air of friendliness which they breathe.

There are many new homes now being built in the several major residential sections of Atlanta. The demand for more homes is one of the certain signs of Atlanta's steady growth. Hotels and apartments continue to increase, but the great mass of Atlanta's people insist upon their own private homes in which to live and rear their children. The richest men in Atlanta live in their private homes and the men working for the lower scales of wages are making their monthly payments on their own little homes. Real estate values in Atlanta are never quoted without including reference to the steadily mounting values in the residential districts.

Atlanta will always be a home-dwelling city. Atlantans will always be home-owners. Luxuries are to be sought, but not at the expense of first guaranteeing one's home. For this reason Atlanta invites prospective citizens of this city to think of the basic fact of planning to live in their own homes, of growing beside their doorsteps the lilacs which are ever waiting to bloom, of listening to the matin songs of birds, of enjoying God's sunshine day by day. It will sweeten life for you and help you to bear your part of the world's work, for we all recognize more and more how very true are these treasured lines:

*"Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home;
A charm from the skies seems to hallow us
there,
Which sought through the world is ne'er met with elsewhere."*

Druid Hills is one of Atlanta's famous home sections. Situated in the heart of a great native forest of oaks and chestnuts and pines and dogwoods, this lovely area has been landscaped with roads that wind in and out with never a loss of natural beauty. The lots are large and provide for spacious lawns and flower gardens. The homes are substantial and surpassingly beautiful. Visitors never cease to talk of Druid Hills--the South's finest home section. Hundreds of acres are yet untouched in this great reservation. Restrictions have been thrown about Druid Hills which will make it for all time a place where people will go to build their permanent homes. Millions of dollars have been spent in the development of this great home section and engineers are constantly at work making permanent improvements which greatly enhance its value.

Avondale Estates is a unique home section in Atlanta. Every touch of the engineers has added beauty to this vast subdivision. It is expected that its distance from the city will be an added incentive to create there a community life which will be remarkable in its unity of purpose and requirements. Excellent school facilities have already been provided at Avondale Estates. A playground for the children is one of the outstanding features of this beautiful new section.

Along with these three major home sections are many smaller subdivisions in Atlanta which are steadily providing the supply of homes for Atlanta's growing population. Every thought is given to the comfort and security of the purchaser of these new homes. They are houses built to sell, but they are built for people who want real homes and will accept nothing but the very best.

Morningside is a later development, but one of remarkable proportions. Located on the North side of the city, this beautiful section is rapidly becoming one of the most desirable home sections in the South. Restrictions have been made at Morningside which will insure this section as a high-class residence district for all time. Beautiful trees abound throughout Morningside and the type of homes, so far constructed, give promise of a substantial community. Money is being spent without reservation to fully develop the entire section into a place of beauty and contentment.

Atlanta will continue her record showing of home-owners for the reason that the experiment has proved entirely satisfactory and the newcomer to the city will at once recognize the merit of living in one's own house. Friendly business men in Atlanta are glad to cooperate in making it possible for every family to own its home and thus be contented and happy.

A good place to visit ... A BETTER PLACE TO LIVE!

THE GUMPS—YESTERDAY AND TODAY

MONTE CARLO

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

SYNOPSIS.
Sir Hargrave Wendover, country gentleman and financier, calls on a famous London physician for examination. The doctor tells him he cannot live for more than six or eight months. Wendover takes the blow standing and decides to go on with his plans for the winter as though nothing had happened. He feels, however, an urge to give a lift to some poor fellow creature. He experiments on the people he comes in contact with until he finds one who is in need of help. This proves to be a delicate-looking man, a girl, Violet Martin, who serves him regularly. He offers her a number of her family's vacation of two months at his villa at Monte Carlo. Not having any family, Violet declines her offer. Wendover, to pass as her brother and come with her. Their host gives them a free rein in Monte Carlo, and they enjoy themselves to the fullest extent. Wendover's London cronies, the Rev. Philip Gorse, John Marston, his financial advisor, and Lord Pellingham arrive at Monte Carlo. Wendover gives a supper party for his friends at the Carlton and among his guests is the Princess Putralka, a great beauty, to whom he has paid marked attention.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.
ECSTASY.

The stock broker looked at Hargrave curiously. He was very spruce and pink and white, even after his journey, but he had a kindly expression.

"I say, Hargrave, old fellow," he ventured, "there's nothing wrong, is there—nothing you haven't told your friends about yourself? It doesn't seem to me that you've been the same man since the night of that little dinner you gave us in your flat."

"Nothing for anyone to worry about," was the quiet reply.

"You're looking thundering fit, and according to the papers you're supposed to be quite the leader of the revels here," Marston went on thoughtfully. "All the same, I've never forgotten that question you put to us, and somehow or other one mixes it up in one's mind with this affair. Makes one think, you know, what?"

"Ah, well, don't," Hargrave begged—"at any rate so long as you're down here. I'm glad to see you, but you can put business out of your mind for a day or two. Anything might happen. A kinder impulse might swamp my present intentions, or the marchesa—a most attractive woman, Johnnie—might find me in a soft moment and beguile me—she's rather one's conception of a light-complexioned Delilah—but at present things remain as they are. That's my last word. Come along, let's get your tickets for the rooms."

The stock broker knew quite well when argument was useless.

Hargrave, toward midnight that evening, with a word of apology to his guests, crossed the floor of the Carlton in the brief interval between two dances, and approached a small table in the background where Violet was seated alone. Although she was a little nervous at his coming, her eyes welcomed him with delight.

"Where is your brother?" he inquired.

"Robert," she confided, "is behaving rather badly. I think it is only because he is thoughtless," she went on, "but I do not like being left here at all. He is talking to some friends somewhere."

"You are perfectly right," Hargrave declared shortly. "Robert ought to have known better than to leave you alone."

"I don't so much mind," she said, "but it is just a little awkward. Some of the men here, I am sure, think I am one of the professional dancers. Two of them have already asked me to dance."

"And now," he told her, "a third is going to take that liberty."

She looked up at him with sudden delight, and rose swiftly to her feet.

"You mean you will dance with me?" she exclaimed. "How nice of you. I had no idea that you—care for it."

"I'm not sure I do, very much," he confided as they glided away to the music of the string band in the balcony.

"You are being good-natured," she murmured, a little disappointed. He looked down at her with a smile.

"If it is good nature, I am being amply repaid," he assured her. "I think we must forgive those young men who took you for a danseuse."

"But you," she murmured, as she crept a little closer to him—"you are wonderful. I have tried so hard to teach Robert but he really is a very bad dancer. To dance with him is nothing like this."

The lights were lowered. The music of the blues grew softer and more languorous. Finally it died away. There were loud demands for an encore. Hargrave glanced at the leader of the orchestra, and the music immediately recommenced.

"Who are all those wonderful people at your table?" she asked him.

"I don't know that they are very wonderful," he replied, suddenly remembering their existence. "There is the Princess Putralka, whom you saw at the Royalty bar the other morning, and afterwards at the Sporting club; Philip Gorse and his sister, a Hungarian woman—the Comtesse Favaldi; two Frenchmen—the Marquis de Villebois and Monsieur de Parian; and the tall, thin man is Lord Edward Pellingham. By-the-by, how did you like Philip Gorse?"

"Immensely," she declared with enthusiasm. "I adore his humanity, too. To think of his coming to a place like this, and dancing. No wonder he understands me and women. You have heard him preach?"

"At Oxford, years ago," Hargrave replied, "and once or twice in London. He'll be a bishop all right some day."

"Nothing could ever make him a greater man than he is," she said simply.

The dying away of the music found them near Hargrave's table. "I shall ask you to join us," he decided. "I cannot have you sitting all alone."

"You mustn't do that," she protested. "They wouldn't like it, if they knew who I was."

"They would welcome a friend of mine at any time," he assured her quietly. "I think that Gorse, who has just recognized you, will do more than welcome you. Come along."

Everyone was very amiable, and a place was found at once for Violet. She was scarcely allowed to sit down, however, before Gorse had taken her away to dance. The princess watched her curiously.

"Your little protegee is beautiful," she remarked. "How did she find herself here alone?"

"Her brother," Hargrave explained, "is rather a young cub. He is over there talking to Mademoiselle Zelle, the danseuse."

The princess continued to follow Violet's graceful movements. She was talking a little shyly but with great interest to her partner.

"I am not sure," she confided, "being in a somewhat jealous mood, that I quite approve of your menage, Hargrave. If I were a man I should find it somewhat distracting to live under the same roof as that girl. However, you are not susceptible, are you?"

"The sufferings I endure are proof to the contrary," he declared. "Gallantly spoken but untrue," she rejoined. "I do not know whether it has been so all your life, but today women spoil you. What have you done to the world and to all of us, dear man, that we should have made a sort of god of you?"

"To be asked to one of your parties is almost equivalent to a royal command. And the women—well, I think as a person who has a certain claim upon your attentions, too many of them are in love with you. The child I am sure adores you. I never saw anyone look so supremely happy in my life as she did when you were dancing with her."

He struggled against the pleasure which her words gave him. "She was being a little neglected," he pointed out. "Look at her now."

"Not the same thing at all," the princess declared. "At this moment it is simply joie de vivre; with you it was personal ecstasy. How do you do it, dear host? Do you carry love potions?"

"If you continue to make fun of me," he threatened, "I shall invite you to dance."

She rose to her feet. "We have danced together very seldom, Hargrave," she murmured. "Only twice before to my knowledge," he answered.

"I think we must stop this," she confessed. "I have been sometimes a little foolish. I think I cling too closely to the traditions of a world which has passed away. Do you remember I told you at dinner time that I had received an important letter?"

"I remember it quite well."

"It was from my uncle," she confided. "He has given his consent, if I choose, to my remarriage, provided Nicholas' mission to Rome is successful."

"Your uncle?" Hargrave murmured thoughtfully.

"He is the head of my side of the family," she explained, "and the trustee of my property. I could not consider such a step without consulting him, especially—"

At Atlanta Theater.

Coming to the Atlanta theater on Friday and Saturday of this week, with matinee Saturday, is the sensational comedy "White Cargo," dramatized by Leon Gordon from Ida Vera Simonson's book, "Hell's Playground." This play enjoyed a run of over three years at Daly's theater, New York, and has duplicated this success practically in every large city of the country. "White Cargo" is a vivid play of love in the tropics, the action taking place on the west coast of Africa. It is intensely thrilling and dramatic, and is presented by an all-star cast. The reserved seat sale starts today at the box office.

The sale of seats for the engagement of the "Greenwich Village Follies" which comes to the Atlanta theater for one week beginning Monday, January 15, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday will open at the box office tomorrow (Thursday) at 10 a. m.

THE BOX OFFICE TOMORROW (Thursday)

at 10 a. m.

No attraction that has been booked in this city in years has aroused a keener advance interest among patrons of the exceptionally large volume of mail orders, the engagement will be too short to accommodate the reduced enthusiasm. Hearing of the organization as featured comedie-an is Raymond Hitchcock, one of the most popular revue stars on the American stage with Tom Haddock and Arthur Hill joining Hitchcock in the roles of chief fun-makers.

Keith's Forsyth.

Well-presented comedy and of a quantity entirely in keeping with the size of Haynes, Lehmann and Kaiser, who call themselves the "Three Little Playmates" but who wish something like a total of 500 pounds in the feature of the program at Keith's.

Then also there is Jules Black and the "Greenwich Village Follies" which includes such famous acts as

Lewis and Dolly, "the joy singers from song land" and Jack and Rita

LaPearl, in their famous "rube" comedy. Lewis and Dolly are offering their famous song "Hello, Hello," with its numerous extra verses. A third act of unusual quality is the musical revue of Margo and both featuring the class instrumental music and interpretative dances. Gordon and Gordon in

"Twists and Turns" and the clever sketch, "Wandering King," complete the bill. "The Original Thing" is the Low feature picture.

At the Howard.

Richard Dix continues to please

Howard patrons in his latest picture, "Womanhandled." This vicious comedy, based on the contrast between what the west really is and what many admirers of blood-and-thunder western pictures suppose it to be, registers a laughing triumph for Richard Dix and his supporting cast. Lora Marie Harrington, who is revealing a musical organization of seven young women

for a very delightful program of singing, dancing and comedy. The usual added novelties round up a very attractive program for the week.

At the Metropolitan.

Big audiences at each show at the Metropolitan theater continue to plauded tiny Tootsie Dunbar, pretty and talented Atlanta exponent of the

"Charleston." Salva and Gertrude, famous European dancers, and "Just Suppose," thrilling motion picture which Richard Barthelmess takes the leading role.

Little Miss Dunbar's appearance is the signal for applause and thunderous applause greets the conclusion of her exhibition of latest "Charleston" steps. Salva and Gertrude are Europe's outstanding exponents of dancing and are revealing a musical organization of seven young women

for a very delightful program of singing, dancing and comedy. The usual added novelties round up a very attractive program for the week.

The Rialto.

"His People," with Rudolph Schildkraut in his latest picture, "What

Have You?" the third episode of the new series, "The Adventures of Mazie," are the chief numbers on the current screen program being offered at the Rialto theater. Pictures of the picture have scored a great popular triumph in Atlanta.

Tudor Theater.

The oft-quoted statement that stars of the stage and screen are poor business people is more of a myth than anything else. In the particular case of John Hays, whose latest feature "The Early Bird," is now playing at the Tudor theater, this time-ward is all "wet" as the saying goes,

and here's the reason why.

Johnny believes that making motion pictures is as much a legitimate business undertaking as any other, and any kind of a mercantile establishment. The investment in each picture he makes for C. C. Burr, his

RAILROAD DISASTER TAMPA FIRE CAUSES DAMAGE OF $200,000

Tampa, Fla., January 12.—(AP)—

Fire here tonight destroyed a warehouse of the Lee Terminal company on the waterfront, all its contents and two carloads of freight, and engulfed the steamship Elizabeth which was docked nearby and other warehouses, one contained 30,000 drums of gasoline. Damage probably will total more than $200,000.

Two alarms brought three fire companies to the blaze, and the firemen were hampered in their work by a burning truck on which the gasoline tank exploded. They were able to confine the fire to one warehouse, however.

Frigid Wave

Set To Arrive

This Morning

A brief cold wave, with the temperature slated to descend to the neighborhood of 20 degrees, was forecast Tuesday by this morning by C.

F. von Herrmann, meteorologist in charge of the local weather bureau.

Brisk winds will probably accompany the fall of the mercury.

Skies, in all probability, will be clear, he stated, and the temperature rise to degrees this afternoon.

There is a possibility of frost in the morning.

The chill here will be caused by a cold wave sweeping in a southerly direction from the ocean valley, according to the weather man, who detailed likelihood of more subfreezing temperatures Thursday morning. No rain or snow, however, is expected in charge of the local weather bureau.

Temperatures Tuesday ranged from 32 degrees at 6 o'clock in the morning to 43 degrees early in the afternoon, after which a steady drop was noted. A brief trace of rain fell around 11 o'clock in the morning.
